

3-hour delays at O'Hare?

Tightening U.S. airport security may force travelers to check in three hours before flight time so every piece of luggage can be examined for explosives, a Federal Aviation Administration official in Washington said Tuesday.

John McLucas, FAA chief, said a major effort to X-ray all airline luggage is one of the many steps his agency has under consideration following the LaGuardia Airport bombing that killed 11 persons in New York last month.

At O'Hare Airport, J. P. Dunne, acting commissioner of aviation, predicted the traveling public would not tolerate routine three-hour delays.

"ANYTHING COULD BE feasible, but the public would squawk. I don't think they would stand it. If you X-ray all the luggage, you'd have to X-ray the cargo and machines to do that aren't on the market."

Dunne said there have been no serious security breaches at O'Hare to justify the X-raying of luggage.

"This is pretty silly when it takes 1½ hours to fly to New York and three hours to get out of the airport," he said.

McLucas acknowledged that long delays might drive passengers away from the airlines.

"When you start talking about checking every

Northwest mulls med center ties

by KURT BAER

Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, is considering affiliation with a major Chicago medical school to become a teaching hospital or medical research center.

The hospital's board of directors will hire a consultant to study the possibility of expanding Northwest beyond the level of a community health-care facility.

The consultant's report is expected this summer, Malcolm D. MacCoun, Northwest Community Hospital president, said. There is no commitment to make any changes in the governing philosophy of the hospital, he said.

MacCOUN SAID THERE are essentially three alternatives for Northwest Community's long-range development.

- Northwest can remain a large, community hospital, "and there is certainly no shame in that," he said.
- By joining with a Chicago medical school, Northwest could be expanded to the level of a teaching hospital used by medical students for intern and resident training.
- Sophisticated diagnostic and laboratory facilities could be developed to give the hospital the distinction of being a major suburban medical re-

Police study to develop station plan

An analysis of police department needs will be conducted by the Village of Arlington Heights before an architect is hired to plan a new police station.

After a tour of the police facilities in the municipal building, the village board's finance committee Tuesday night directed the village administration to submit a study within 60 days on specific needs and cost estimates for a new station.

Trustee O.V. Anderson, who last year toured police departments in other suburbs, was the strongest supporter of Village Mgr. L.A. Hanson's recommendation that an architect be hired.

"NOW WE GET the efficiency we do under the working conditions we operate under is beyond my comprehension," Anderson said. "I don't think we're getting our full potential from them because of the limited facilities. It's about time we do something about this."

During the tour of the police facilities, Hanson said police are forced to share offices, desks and lockers. He also said interrogation rooms and a special detention room for juveniles are needed.

"When we have a juvenile in here now we have to sit him in a chair and have someone just sit there and watch him," Hanson said.

Hanson said he hopes a new police facility could be completed by the end of 1977. If the police department is moved out of the municipal building, the health department would be moved out of the basement and the village clerk, out of the finance department. The X-ray unit, now located in a trailer north of the building, would be moved inside, Hanson said.

NEW DORMITORIES are under construction at Arlington Park Race Track's backstretch area. The new quarters will be of concrete block, replacing old wooden dormitories.

I'll give $10,000 for traffic study, Lattof tells panel

by JOE SWICKARD

A major landowner in downtown Arlington Heights offered Tuesday night to finance an independent traffic study for the proposed railroad underpass at Arlington Heights Road and Northwest Highway.

Nicholas Lattof said, "I'll contribute $10,000 — I'll raise it — to bring in an independent outfit to do a survey."

Lattof, owner of Lattof Chevrolet and an opponent of the proposed underpass, made the offer Tuesday to the special committee studying parking problems and redevelopment of the central business district.

HE SAID SUGGESTED parking garages were necessary to the growth of the business district, but warned the railroad underpass would be "the worst thing that could happen to this town."

The village is considering entering into a $6 million project with the federal and state governments to depress Arlington Heights Road and Northwest Highway to relieve daily traffic jams at the intersection. Under the proposal, the federal government would provide 70 per cent of the money, with the remainder divided between the state and the village.

Lattof said an underpass would only serve to attract heavy truck traffic and would discourage shoppers from coming downtown. He said any improvements to Arlington Heights Road would have to include a bypass for truck traffic.

Although the underpass idea still must face federal, state and local hearings, village officials have said bids could be let for construction by spring 1977.

JOE KESLER, Arlington Heights village planner, said the traffic study would be necessary for both an underpass and revitalization of the business district. He said a study would cost $10,000 to $15,000.

While criticizing the underpass proposal, Lattof gave enthusiastic support to plans to build parking garages to serve downtown shoppers.

"The crying need of the businesses is parking, parking, parking," he said.

He said he would favor the creation of a special taxing district to help finance the garages.

"Charge me an extra tax, I'll pay it. Let the people (merchants) who are going to use this pay for it," he said.

THE COMMITTEE, chaired by Trustee August C. Bettman, had planned to select one of three plans for downtown garages. However, Bettman deferred the vote because barely a quorum attended the session.

Lattof said he would cut short his vacation to attend the next meeting of the committee.

"Let me know and I'll fly in for it," he told Bettman.

Following the meeting, Bettman said Lattof's support of the garage is an important step forward.

"We have three key guys now," he said.

The others mentioned by him were Douglas Dodd of the First Arlington National Bank and Donald Morton of Arlington Heights Federal Savings and Loan Assn.

'Nays' stall plan for revision in village elections

by BILL HILL

Strong opposition from several Arlington Heights homeowners' associations has stalled a proposal to change the village's form of government from an at-large to a geographical representation system.

The village board Monday appointed a special committee to hold hearings on the various alternatives and make a recommendation in March. Trustees David Griffin, August Bettman and Madeline Schroeder were named to the committee.

The proposal to conduct a referendum on the question of changing the village's form of government has been made repeatedly by former Village Trustee Dwight Walkon and has been

Dist. 25 takes preschool census

Census takers are going door to door in Arlington Heights Dist. 25 counting the district's preschool children.

The census, conducted by PTA volunteers, will continue through Feb. 6.

The figures compiled from the survey will be used to help the district project future enrollment in its 18 schools.

According to a consultant's study released last fall, enrollment in Dist. 25 is projected to drop 31 per cent from 7,938 students this year to 5,458 in 1984. The projections derived from the census will be compared with those figures.

The decline in enrollment spells financial trouble for Dist. 25 because it will result in loss of state aid. Consultants predict a $3.9 million deficit in the district by 1984 and board members are now meeting to devise ways of offsetting the deficit.

Residents missed by the census takers should contact their local school.

8 charged in scheme to cheat government

Eight men, including an Arlington Heights resident, were charged Tuesday with taking part in a scheme designed to defraud the federal government of Medicare and Medicaid payment funds. U.S. Atty. Samuel Skinner said a special grand jury indicted the owners of a drug company and an Evergreen Park nursing home for conspiring to defraud the government. The local man, Jack Ginsberg, of 703 W. Haven, was named as an unindicted co-conspirator and charged with one count in a criminal information with paying a kickback. Ginsberg and three others are the owners of the Ideal Drug Co. of Chicago. They allegedly paid kickbacks to the owners of the nursing home in 1973 and 1974 on a monthly basis for every patient on public aid that was in the home. In return for the pay-offs, the drug company supplied drugs and medical supplies for the home. Skinner said the men were charged under a section of the federal law which bans bribes or kickbacks in the furnishing of services paid by Medicaid. Skinner said the payoffs amounted to about $7,000 over the two-year period. The nursing home owners were paid about $5 per month per patient, he said.

Fire official wins back job

David Wolf has won his battle with Des Plaines officials and will be reinstated as a deputy fire chief in the city fire department. Judge Edward F. Healy of Cook County Circuit Court Tuesday ruled that Wolf, a 23-year department veteran, did not resign last June as contended by city officials. Besides reinstating Wolf to the $22,400-a-year post, Healy ordered the city to give the deputy chief full back pay amounting to more than $11,000. Wolf filed a lawsuit after officials interpreted a letter to Fire Chief Donald Corey from Wolf as a resignation letter and removed him from the payroll. Wolf said the letter was not a resignation letter but an offer to resign his fire department position or as chairman of a city Bicentennial commission. Healy called the dispute "petty."

County to probe 'Greens' Thursday

Fourteen Cook County officials Thursday will investigate 500 alleged building, fire and health code violations at the Greens of Golf Mill apartment complex in unincorporated Maine Township. The investigation was ordered by County Board Pres. George Dunne after he met last week with representatives of the Greens Tenants Assn., which was formed to seek improved living conditions at the 127-building complex.

Nude-dancing bar loses license

The Roman House, a Lake County nude-dancing tavern near Wheeling, has lost its liquor license in what is anticipated to be a precedent in Illinois. The Roman House has been accused of violating a county ordinance that bans nude dancing in an establishment that sells liquor. The Illinois Appellate Court ruled the county ordinance valid, and the county liquor commission did not issue a new license to the Roman House. The commission's action was upheld by the Illinois Liquor Commission Monday. Officials said liquor licenses to other nude-dancing places would be refused if they violate the ordinance. Authorities reported some other county nude dancing night spots have started serving soda pop instead of liquor.

VA to pay veterans insurance dividends

Illinois veterans who kept their insurance policies intact following discharge will be paid $19.76 million by the end of February as a result of the Veterans Administration decision to pay insurance dividends on an accelerated basis.

The largest amount of money will go to World War II veterans who have retained their National Service Life Insurance. In Illinois, 196,289 World War II veterans will receive more than $18 million, for an average of about $92.

Eligible World War I veterans will receive an average $105 and Korean War veterans will be paid an average $19.

Patty's bank robbery trial under way

TOP CRIMINAL lawyer F. Lee Bailey arrives at Federal Building to defend newspaper heiress Patty Hearst.

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — With a clerk intoning the words "The United States vs. Patricia Campbell Hearst," jury selection got under way Tuesday in the opening of the bank robbery trial of a rich girl charged with turning into a violent revolutionary.

As the 21-year-old heiress watched and listened with apparent fascination, U.S. District Judge Oliver J. Carter weeded out the "hardship cases" among prospective jurors. At the end of the first day, he had 74 men and women willing and able to serve in deciding whether Patty joined her Symbionese Liberation Army abductors willingly, or whether she was tortured, terrorized and brainwashed.

Carter intends to pick 12 jurors by Wednesday.

The remainder of a panel of 120 was excused for reasons varying from health, jobs, children to bias that would prevent impartiality.

It was the opening trial round in the bizarre story that goes back almost two years to the time Miss Hearst was kidnapped by the SLA cult.

She joined in the armed bank hold-up two months later, but her defense is that she had been tortured and brainwashed into taking part.

As in all federal courts, the judge did the questioning of the jurors. At the close of the morning session, Carter said he would next turn to interrogating each man and woman closely about any bias or preconceived opinion of guilt or innocence.

Dressed neatly in a navy blue pant-suit, Miss Hearst sat at a counsel table with chief defense lawyer F. Lee Bailey and five other attorneys. Pale and frail-looking, she smiled somewhat wanly at some of the excuses jurors offered for not serving.

At the nearby prosecution table sat U.S. Attorney James L. Browning Jr. and two assistants.

Patricia's parents, newspaper owner Randolph A. Hearst and his wife, Catherine, sat in a front row 10 feet away along with her sisters, Anne and Vicki.

Judge Carter had told the panel that the jury would be locked up in a hotel throughout the trial.

"I'm not sure I could be sequestered for four weeks without having a fit," said Barbara J. Lawson.

"You mean it's a psychological thing?" asked the judge.

"Well, yes, I guess so. What I mean is I just couldn't sit still for that long."

She was excused, as was Earl Lee Jr., who said he could not afford to lose his pay for that period.

Carter warned the jurors who passed the first hurdle that they must not discuss the case among themselves or with anyone else, and he said if anyone approached them, they should inform a marshal and he would deal with the situation "forthwith."

"This is the most fully covered case to date in this country that I know of," Carter said, "but there are plenty of other things in the world to talk about. Talk about those things — the world is your oyster."

Bailey held an impromptu news conference shortly before the trial got under way.

Asked if he had any surprises in store, Bailey said: "If I told you, they wouldn't be surprises, would they?" He said, "Yes, I think we have a couple."

PATRICIA HEARST

Prosecutor on first big case faces Bailey

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The trial of Patricia Hearst pits a defense lawyer of national repute for more than 10 years against a federal prosecutor on his first big case.

F. Lee Bailey, Patricia Hearst's defense attorney, came into prominence with his representation during appeal of Dr. Samuel H. Sheppard, who had been convicted of murdering his wife.

He also defended Albert DeSalvo, the "Boston Strangler;" Capt. Ernest L. Medina, charged in the Mai Lai massacre; and Dr. Carl Coppolino, accused in two "love slave" killings.

Bailey opposes James L. Browning, who rose from county prosecutor to U. S. Attorney by appointment of President Richard M. Nixon. He is handling his first major federal prosecution.

Bailey is 42, short, a natty dresser, with a sharp wit. He attended Harvard and Boston University Law School and practices in Boston.

He flies his own jet plane, has become a television celebrity and is president of a Michigan-based helicopter manufacturing firm.

While Bailey was attorney for Sheppard, the doctor's conviction was reversed in 1966 on the grounds that pretrial publicity had made it impossible for him to get a fair trial after the slaying in 1954.

Bailey lost his attempt to have DeSalvo committed to a mental institution instead of to prison. In the Coppolino case the doctor was acquitted in New Jersey of killing Lt. Col. William E. Farber, who was the husband of Coppolino's mistress. Later, in Florida Coppolino was convicted of killing his wife, Carmela. Medina was cleared of charges he took part in the slaughter of Vietnamese civilians.

In 1971 Bailey was suspended from law practice in New Jersey for a year for misconduct during a trial. In 1973 he was a defendant himself on federal fraud charges in promotion of "Dare To Be Great," a mail order self-development program. The case was dismissed.

Claiming an income of more than $1 million, Bailey once said, "... I get paid for seeing that my clients have every break the law allows."

Browning 43, was born in Globe, Ariz. A tall, lanky, easygoing man, he sports a mustache and wears glasses. He attended public schools in Santa Maria, Mountain View and Redding, Calif., went to Fresno State College where he studied political science and got his degree from Hastings Law School, San Francisco.

He served in the Air Force from 1954 to 1956 and was in the San Mateo County Calif. district attorney's office from 1961 until he was named U. S. Attorney in 1970.

Judge blocks FDA's Red Dye ban

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal judge, at the request of manufacturers, Tuesday blocked for 10 days the Food and Drug Administration's proposed ban on the nation's most widely used food coloring, Red Dye No. 2.

District Judge Aubrey E. Robinson Jr. issued the temporary restraining order and scheduled a hearing on the issue Feb. 6. The FDA, which had planned to implement the ban Wednesday, is expected to appeal his action.

Rolph Nader's Health Research Group, which has been pressing the agency for years to outlaw Red No. 2, said it also would seek to intervene in the court action.

Robinson ordered the delay on a motion by Warner-Jenkinson Co. of St. Louis, a major manufacturer of the dye; the Certified Color Manufacturers Association of Washington, D. C., a trade group; H. Kohnstamm of New York, another manufacturer; and Monarch NuGrape of Doraville, Ga., a soft drink producer.

The FDA announced last week it intended to halt use of the dye on grounds of tests raising questions as to its safety, including a possible potential for causing cancer.

It is used to color a wide variety of foods and drinks — an estimated $10 billion worth every year — and once was employed extensively in cosmetics, although that no longer is the case. Soft drink manufacturers use it to produce orange and purple beverages, as well as red.

FDA Commissioner Dr. Alexander

M. Schmidt, announcing the ban, said latest studies "cannot establish the safety of Red No. 2. Indeed it raises again certain safety questions. Furthermore we know of no results from any other studies that would resolve these questions."

The basis of the action was a report from Dr. David W. Gaylor of the FDA's National Center for Toxicological Research, who said the dye in large doses apparently causes a "significant increase" of malignant tumors in rats.

Algerian convoy attacked in Sahara

Algeria said Tuesday Moroccan troops attacked an Algerian army convoy inside the former Spanish Sahara and "very violent fighting is in progress." The battle marked a major escalation in the dispute between the two countries over the mineral-rich, North African territory. The report was the first official admission by Algeria that its forces were actively aiding the Polisario Front guerrillas — a Marxist movement opposed to the partition of the former Spanish territory by Morocco and Mauritania.

Thousands of Lebanese take to streets

Thousands of Lebanese poured into the sun-swept streets of Beirut Tuesday for the first time in weeks as rival gunmen headed home under the watchful gaze of Palestinian troops. The withdrawal of Christian and Moslem militiamen from occupied Territory reinforced hopes for lasting peace in the devastated nation of 2.9 million. A Syrian-Lebanese-Palestinian truce committee had set a Tuesday deadline for the withdrawal of all militiamen from occupied lands. A spokesman said the pullout proceeded "according to plan" with "no difficulties."

Martin defends last days of Saigon

Graham Martin, U.S. ambassador to South Vietnam when it fell to the Communists last spring, defended himself Tuesday against what he called "uninformed criticism" of his role in the evacuation of Saigon. Martin testified, "The last 10 days required a most careful walking of the tightrope of judgment of just how the situation was developing and just how much the traffic would bear without triggering the panic or the resentment of the Vietnamese, either of which would have brought catastrophe."

Ford reaffirms commitment to Israel

President Ford, reaffirming America's commitment to Israel's security, Tuesday promised Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin the United States will maintain momentum in the search for Middle East peace. Rabin, after a ceremonial greeting by Ford in pouring rain on the White House South Lawn, spent 80 minutes with the President in the Oval Office discussing the Middle East situation and U.S. economic and military assistance to Israel.

Push to publish CIA report nixed in House

The House Intelligence Committee Tuesday failed to win House permission to publish its already leaked CIA report because some members felt it would disclose information which should be kept secret. Committee chairman Otis D. Pike, D-N.Y., asked unanimous consent of the full House to issue the 338-page report by midnight Friday. Rep. Robert E. Bauman, R-Md., however, objected. Under House rules, unanimous consent must be obtained in order to publish a report when the House is not in session.

Greenspan views U.S. economy

Congress could throw the country into a severe recession in 1977 or 1978 if it allows next year's budget deficit to climb to the level of this year's projected $76 billion, President Ford's chief economist said Tuesday. Alan Greenspan, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, also told the House Appropriations Committee that he saw a "significant return of confidence" among consumers which was adding to a strong but gradual recovery.

Senate OKs Bush as CIA director

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate voted Tuesday to confirm George Bush as director of the Central Intelligence Agency despite contentions his political past will further jeopardize public confidence in the intelligence community.

The nomination was confirmed 64-27. Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., was the only Republican to vote against Bush although Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., voted present.

Bush won praise from supporters and opponents for his honesty, integrity and a distinguished public career as a congressman from Texas, ambassador to the United Nations and the U. S. liaison to the People's Republic of China.

But it was his chairmanship of the Republican National Committee during the Nixon administration that brought Bush's nomination under fire as inappropriate because of past misuses of the CIA for political purposes.

Critics of the Ford nominee said the public would be "understandably suspicious" of the potential for political abuse of the CIA by a director who once chaired a major political party and is reputed to be one of the President's "guys."

"We cannot have a rehabilitation of the agency without a restoration of public confidence," said Sen. Thomas McIntyre, D-N.H.

Sen. Dale Bumpers, D-Ark., said the CIA job "must be above even the suspicion of politics" and confirming Bush as director would set a "devastating precedent."

Of the eight men who have headed the CIA since its establishment in 1947, three have come from the military, two from within the agency and three from private or government careers.

Bush would be the first director with a past political career.

Bush's supporters cited his character, proven integrity and judgment. Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., and Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield suggested Bush's political past might be an asset although expressed confidence he would be "above politics" in directing the CIA.

"George Bush is first and foremost a patriot," said Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tenn. "He is a great citizen."

One of those voting against Bush was Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, chairman of the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence. He urged the Senate to reject the nomination "and demand from the President a more impartial candidate."

Miss Evert's date was Jack Ford, son of the President and hobnobber with celebrities such as Bianca Jagger and Andy Warhol. Chris met the Fords last Saturday, prior to a dinner date with Jack. Asked to describe the relationship, Mrs. Ford's press secretary, Sheila Weldenfeld said only "they enjoy each other's company."

• The Senate Foreign Relations Committee has confirmed Anne L. Armstrong as ambassador to Great Britain. She will replace Elliot Richardson, who has been confirmed as commerce secretary. She is expected to be approved by the full Senate shortly.

Angola aid ban vote angers Ford

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House, on a 323-99 vote, rejected a last-minute plea from President Ford Tuesday and gave final congressional approval to a ban on all behind-the-scenes U. S. military aid to Angola.

There was no immediate comment from the President, but White House sources said he was angered by the action and felt some House members voted against him for election-year reasons.

The House accepted without change a $112.3 billion defense appropriation bill into which the Senate last month incorporated an amendment to deny any money for assisting anticommunist elements in the Angolan civil war.

Earlier Tuesday, Ford sent House Speaker Carl Albert a letter urging Congress to provide $28 million in aid to friendly factions in Angola "be destroyed" by Soviet and Cuban forces.

But Albert, after the vote, told reporters he felt the administration's decision to get involved in Angola

"was about the most useless enterprise I have ever seen undertaken."

House Republican leader Rep. John J. Rhodes attributed the heavy vote against Ford to "a lingering fear of getting involved in another Vietnam." But he defended the President's position, saying that "by denying him the right to use any kind of aid there, Congress in effect is telling the Russians 'to just come ahead.'"

House Democratic leader Thomas P. O'Neill said the Russians "are in the same position in Angola that we were in Vietnam," and that he could not understand what they and the Cubans were doing there.

The White House sources said the President might make still another effort to revive Angolan aid in the House and Senate.

In Angola, meantime, the hard-pressed, Western-backed forces in the civil war have moved their administrative headquarters out of Huambo, target of a tank-led drive by Soviet-armed troops. Journalists have reported shooting at Huambo airport.

Schools

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59

A hootenanny sing-along will be held at Marshall School Thursday from 7 to 8:45 p.m. A 25-cent admission will include refreshments. The program is sponsored by the PTC at Marshall School, 711 Chelmsford Ln., Elk Grove Village.

The Einstein School PTA will hold a fun fair at the school Saturday from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. The school is at 345 W. Walnut St., Des Plaines.

High School Dist. 214

The Rolling Meadows High School jazz ensemble, directed by Len King, will appear in-concert as the guest high school ensemble Saturday at the Illinois Wesleyan University Jazz Festival. The 8 p.m. concert in Presser Hall will end the day-long festival activities with high school bands from around the state.

The Rolling Meadows ensemble has won superior ratings at the Mundelein Jazz Festival and the Oak Lawn Jazz Festival for three years and was selected as a Class AA finalist at Oak Lawn in 1974. The ensemble was first place at the Western Illinois Jazz Festival in 1974 and second place in 1975.

King is a 1967 graduate of Illinois Wesleyan where he directed the Phi Mu Alpha Jazz Band and formed his own dance band. He plays first trombone with the Northshore concert band which recently completed an European concert tour.

Tickets for the concert are $1 for students, $2 for adults and are on sale at the Illinois Wesleyan school of music office or at the door.

Saint James School

The St. James School Parents Club will serve a spaghetti dinner Sunday in the school basement, 821 Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights.

All the spaghetti you can eat will be served from 3 to 7 p.m. Cost is $10 for families, $2.50 for adults and $1.25 for children under 12.

Reunions

Preparations are under way for the 20th reunion celebration of Maine East High School's class of 1956. Classmates are asked to contact Carol Baumer Lechner, 772 W. Woodland, Palatine, 558-4931 or Rosemary LaForte Ryan, 406 W. Sibley, Park Ridge, 825-8370.

Village government change stalled

supported by Village Pres. James T. Ryan since he was elected in April 1975.

"I DON'T KNOW which is a better form of government, because it is the people who are elected who make or break a form of government, but I do think that government in its present system may well have lost touch with the people because they are not exercising their right to vote," Ryan said.

"The advantage of having people elected by district is that it gives the board an in-house expert as to problems of a given area. It doesn't mean the other eight trustees will turn their backs on you," he said.

Walton's proposal to have the village divided into eight districts by population with one trustee elected from each district was opposed by more than 20 members of the audience at Monday's meeting and also by most of the trustees because residents would only be able to vote every four years for one trustee instead of every two years for four trustees.

"I'd like to have the opportunity to get rid of all the rascals every four years, not just the one from my district," Trustee Richard Durava said.

"Any decision made by the board affects greatly the quality of life of all areas of the village," said Les Plotz, 1004 N. Mitchell St. "I'd like to retain the right to vote for all nine seats on the village board because what the other trustees do is very important to me," he said.

No dates have been set for the special committee to begin hearings on the alternative forms of government.

Dist. 59 public forum to discuss issues tonight

A forum to discuss issues in Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 will be held today at 7:30 p.m. at the Elk Grove Township Hall, 2400 S. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights, by the Dist. 59 School Community Council.

Topics that might be covered include declining enrollment, unit school district formation, gifted children program, teacher accountability and the school board.

Residents are encouraged to attend and ask any questions they might have about the district and its operations. Eight residents and educators involved with the district are on the panel to answer the questions.

Panel members include: Charlene Bessey, talent development program consultant; Leah Cummins Dist. 59 public and community relations director; Marge Dunlap, special education teacher at Rupley School; Lynne Helvie, board member; Alma Parrish, teachers' union president; Gerald Smiley, former board member; Joseph Stecker, resident and former finance committee member; and Jane-Renee Weakley, volunteer service bureau executive director.

Subdivision vote scheduled tonight

Village planners tonight will vote on a proposed 105-unit subdivision near Hersey High School, 1900 E. Thomas St., Arlington Heights.

The decision by the village plan commission on the development, the Court of Russetwoods, was delayed for a week so the planners could examine a proposed maintenance agreement and plans positioning the houses on the lots.

The developers, Szczesny Builders, told the commission the $65,000 to $80,000 house would be on privately maintained cul-de-sacs. The flood control basins would be the responsibility of the owners' association.

The meeting will be at 8 p.m. in the municipal building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd. It is open to the public.

Budget woes spur county hospital control review

by WANDALYN RICE

George W. Dunne, Cook County Board president, said Tuesday he thinks the county board may have to take back control of the county hospital budget to cut costs.

Dunne's statement came at the end of day-long hearings on the hospital governing commission budget for 1976, the largest part of which is $118 million for Cook County Hospital.

The commission has asked the county board for a 6.5-cent-per-$100 assessed value property tax increase to pay for this year's budget.

The county board gave up control of the county hospital in 1970 when the Illinois General Assembly passed legislation creating the hospital governing commission. The commission was created after the county's control of the hospital had come under repeated criticism for inefficiency.

Under the current system with the governing commission, the county board can reduce the total amount of the hospital budget, but cannot make specific line-item budget reductions.

Last year the county board cut $8.5 million from the budget and recommended specific areas to be cut. Many of the recommended cuts, particularly in administrative costs, were not made by the governing commission.

Dunne said he has long felt the county board should not have line-item control over the hospital budget, but said, "I think I'm switching my position on that."

"Even when the county board ran the hospital, we had a line-item veto and never exercised it, but in the light of what happened to the cuts we recommended last year, perhaps we should get a veto," Dunne said.

Following the meeting, Dunne said he thinks the county could take back control of the hospital budget, using its home-rule powers. He dodged a direct answer to the question on whether the board could take that authority for the current budget, but said, "We have a meeting of the county board Feb. 2 and we won't pass this budget until Feb. 10 or 11."

Dunne's proposal was immediately supported by suburban Comr. Mary McDonald, a persistent critic of the hospital budget.

"We have to do it because they are just running wild over there (at the hospital)," Mrs. McDonald said.

The way we see it

Yes vote means saving 'Heights

Prospect Heights residents will go to the polls Saturday to determine the future of their community.

They will vote either to incorporate and form a city government or remain unincorporated and be subject to gradual annexation by neighboring villages.

The 13,000 residents of the community have struggled with this issue for years. A court ruling last fall gave them the chance to conduct a referendum which could settle the question.

Prospect Heights has long had a separate identity. It is a unique community in the Northwest suburbs, more open and rustic than the bustling villages that surround it. The people who built Prospect Heights saw it as an alternative place to live. And because it has provided an alternative setting it has been a rewarding and pleasant place for those who have since settled there.

It has, in fact, been the independent bent of its citizens that over the years has kept Prospect Heights from organizing a municipal government. For many, the least government has been the best government.

Unfortunately, the lack of a municipal government has cost residents of Prospect Heights some important controls over the destiny of their community: zoning and border control.

Developments have occurred that have not been in keeping with the general character of Prospect Heights. And parts of the community have been annexed, piecemeal, by neighboring villages.

Another unfortunate result of Prospect Heights' lack of government is the lack of an adequate police force, and crime has shown a steady increase in Prospect Heights.

Leaders of the incorporation move see it as a means to correct those deficiencies. They propose a modest $539,185 budget for the first year of operation, with no additional taxation. They envision the new city providing only the most basic services not now being provided by local taxing districts: street maintenance, police patrols and a small governmental staff.

Any additional services desired by Prospect Heights residents would necessitate a municipal assessment or tax levy. Residents would control that through the election of eight aldermen and a mayor.

We believe Saturday's vote will be the last time residents of Prospect Heights will have an opportunity to decide whether their community should be preserved as a distinct entity, and we are confident that if residents accept that fact they will vote to incorporate — and preserve — Prospect Heights.

Leave our time alone

If the energy crisis hadn't afflicted us two years ago, we might agree with George Swanson's scheme to extend summer daylight to 9:30 p.m.

There's nothing like a quiet summer evening to wash away the cares and trials of a busy world.

But to accomplish the dream of Swanson, an earth science teacher at Conant High School in Hoffman Estates, we would have to move our clocks forward in March and again in May.

And then there would be the problem of dark summer mornings. Swanson says we'd have to change our national time zones to avoid midmorning darkness in certain areas.

After reviewing the proposal, we're inclined to give Swanson a high grade for a bright idea. But, thanks anyway, we'd like to have the birds awaken before us.

It's our decision, Milton. This or wash away, chunk by chunk!

Superblock funding questioned

A Jan. 19 editorial was addressed very concisely and logically to the issue of HUD money — and what the money can do for the community, i.e. downtown redevelopment, a clear need for the village (Arlington Heights).

Des Plaines twice has faced the same issue of community redevelopment and responded in the negative. Des Plaines is also faced with the issue of a downtown redevelopment. I am strongly opposed to the use of general obligation bonds to finance the city's portion of the Superblock development — the parking garage. Revenue bonds would be the normal means of financing a viable highly regarded business venture. When an enterprise is on shaky ground, bondholders reflect their better judgment by not buying stock in a white elephant. The scapegoat then becomes the general obligation bonds. The millstone is placed around the taxpayers' neck. Success or failure of the enterprise now becomes the concern of the unwitting taxpayer who never blessed the venture in the first place.

Revenue bonds and the astronomical interest accruing to them are paid from the profits of a practical endeavor. The people of Arlington Heights didn't buy the gamble from the Madison Square Garden Corp.; why should the taxpayers of Des Plaines be any more glibly with Superblock? Are the investors who would or would not speculate on our parking facility less qualified to judge its prospects than we? Are we convinced Superblock will succeed or do we subscribe it has to succeed or the city of Des Plaines will go down with it?

Mr. Mahon, recently announced candidate for the office of mayor of Des Plaines, announced his position on Superblock. He did not deny the subject so long as the aforementioned millstone or millstones were not part and parcel of such enterprises. In simple terms, don't shackle the taxpayers with obligations involving private enterprises.

Since the issuance of the editorial of Jan. 19, two of our adjacent communities have joined the thousands throughout the country applying for Community Development money. Both Arlington Heights and Hoffman Estates have evaluated HUD and Community Development and elected to confront this toothless dragon, more power to them. I for one feel that the wisdom they exhibited in rejecting the general obligation bonds for a stadium has been again displayed on this issue.

Fence post

letters to the editor

He switches to Howlett

In 1972 I ran for state senator and supported Dan Walker for Governor. Today, I offer my apologies to those friends and relatives who took my bad advice. It is no secret that I have been critical of Dan Walker for the past year. However, I believe that my criticism is well grounded in the Governor's own actions. I cannot bring myself to use school children, senior citizens, handicapped children, welfare recipients and other disadvantaged for political purposes. Dan Walker has skillfully used all these unfortunate people for his advancement. He has manipulated you the "People" into believing that these unfortunate are your tax dollar enemy. Is there really someone of you that does not have a friend or relative among this group? Are these people really not part of the "People?" I think not.

Today, I am supporting Dan Walker's opponent, Mike Howlett, for Governor. This was not an easy decision, but I have taken the time to compare the public records of both men. I found out that Mike Howlett has quietly worked for both public and private programs for handicapped persons and senior citizens. I found out that Mike Howlett actually returned to the state treasury money appropriated to run his state auditor's office. I found out that Mike Howlett has reduced expenditures and improved service each of his years in public office. Above all, I found out that Mike Howlett has supported quality education for all of our school children. There is really no comparison between Mike Howlett and what his New York advertising firms name for Walker this week.

Berry's World

Historian debunks lore of early patriots

'Paul Revere's immortal ride wasn't finished'

by VIRGINIUS DABNEY

As a practicing historian I am fascinated and not a little dismayed by counterfeit history — a tendency during the Bicentennial year to twist history to meet popular concepts or to cash in on sensational revelations about American patriots that are unsupported by historical evidence.

At least two such histories, Gore Vidal's "Burr" and Fawn Brodie's "Jefferson" have already been published. Both met a storm of protest from historians and scholars. And perhaps other historical travesties may be anticipated during the Bicentennial.

Counterfeit history has frequently produced heroes and heroines whose reputation for patriotic achievement far exceeds the recorded events.

I had reason to observe this in editing "The Patriots," a book commissioned by the U.S. Bicentennial Society, commemorating 50 great American patriots whose actions contributed meaningfully to the birth of our nation.

AFTER LONG and painstaking study of their lives and their real contributions to the Revolution, it became necessary for the sake of historical accuracy to omit the biographies of three patriots whose reputations were unsupported in fact or were the product of popular enthusiasm growing over the years.

Paul Revere is the most conspicuous of those omitted. His name is a household word and his "midnight ride" is often cited as an event of epochal significance.

Yet the fact is that Revere never completed his famous ride to alert the residents of Concord, Mass. He was captured by the British before he even got to Concord. Moreover, the revolutionists at Concord had already been warned by the lanterns in the tower of Boston's Old North Church before Revere jumped into the saddle. Indeed, Revere's undying fame demonstrates the power of a good press agent, Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, who immortalized him in the lines: "Listen, my children and you shall hear, Of the midnight ride of Paul Revere." The poem was written in 1863 almost a century after the events it purports to describe.

The author is a historian and Pulitzer Prize winning former editor of the Richmond "Times-Dispatch." He edited the recently published book, "The Patriots" (Atheneum) and is chairman of the U.S. Bicentennial Society.

FEW ARE AWARE of another event in Revere's Revolutionary career. He was a leading participant in a disastrous fiasco, the Penobscot Expedition of 1779 when the Americans fled ignominiously before a much smaller British force. Revere and other officers were subsequently court-martialed. He was finally acquitted "with the equal honor as the other officers in the same expedition."

Even so, Revere was an ardent patriot who fought for independence, took part in the Boston Tea Party and risked his life in the attempted ride to Concord. He was one of our greatest silversmiths. But he was not the transcendent hero many have thought him to be.

What of Betsy Ross and the long-held belief that she made the first American flag? This again may be counterfeit history. There is no documentary evidence. It was not until 1870, almost a century after the supposed event that her grandson, William Canby, advanced the claim. He stated that Betsy Ross stitched the first flag at the behest of George Washington and Robert Morris. While Canby no doubt believed this and perhaps with good reason, historical scholars feel that the evidence is insufficient.

MOLLY PITCHER, who likewise does not appear in "The Patriots," was the wife of John Hays, a Continental artilleryman. At the Battle of Monmouth, June 28, 1778, the day was scorchingly hot and Hays and others were overcome. Molly carried pitchers of water from a nearby well to the parched and gasping soldiers. Although her real name was Molly Hays she was known thereafter as Molly Pitcher. She also helped to serve her husband's cannon when he succumbed to heat. Molly's performance was altogether admirable but it hardly seems sufficient to warrant giving her a place among 50 foremost patriots of the Revolution.

Nor was Molly's heroism unprecedented. It was not uncommon for women in the Revolutionary War to accompany their husbands to the battlefield. Margaret Corbin, the only woman honored by burial in the West Point cemetery, also carried water to soldiers on the battlefield. When her husband, an artilleryman, was killed in action, she, like Molly Pitcher, bravely took his place at the cannon.

Another young heroine, Deborah Sampson, enlisted in the Continental Army, wore the uniform and participated in a bloody bayonet charge at Yorktown. Receiving a saber cut and a musket wound on her thigh, Deborah insisted on doctoring her own wounds. Finally, she had to accept treatment by an army doctor who quickly discovered that the brave young soldier was a woman.

THE COURAGE of all three women was magnificent. But it did not significantly affect the course of the Revolution. In the judgment of most scholars, isolated acts of courage on the battlefield, whether by women or men, do not by themselves justify apotheosis among the 50 foremost patriots of the Revolution.

Obviously the honor roll of great American patriots is much longer than the 50 commemorated in "The Patriots." All signers of the Declaration of Independence, for example, merit our veneration for having risked their lives, their fortunes and their sacred honor. But the limitation to 50 commentaries, made it necessary to omit most of them, as well as a number of fighting men who distinguished themselves on Revolutionary battlefields. All, however, richly merit our remembrance.

It is hoped that history yet to be published during the Bicentennial Year, will also stimulate remembrance, relying upon facts to invoke it, rather than pseudo-history tinged with poetry and lamentably counterfeit.

search center capable of offering tertiary care, the highest level of hospital treatment.

When Northwest reaches its planned 600-bed capacity in two to three years, it will be the largest community hospital in the Chicago metropolitan area without a medical school affiliation, MacCoun said.

TEACHING HOSPITALS tend to be larger and more expensive than community hospitals because of the equipment and facilities they must have available for teaching. Lutheran General Hospital, Park Ridge, currently is the only teaching hospital in the Northwest suburbs. It is affiliated with the University of Illinois College of Medicine.

"If we were not dealing in an environment highly-charged by government controls, we might not be forced to make a plan," MacCoun said. But mounting government regulations over hospital development make it imperative that Northwest have a master plan, he added.

"For the last six years much of what we have done has been geared around making us the best community hospital we can be. At the end of the year (1975), we decided we needed a fresh approach. The board of directors agreed to hire a consultant to lead us on the philosophical and intellectual exercise of finding what we want to be for the future," MacCoun said.

The consultant has not been hired yet, and the study will probably take about six months to complete, he said.

ONE REASON TO consider taking on the responsibilities of a teaching hospital, MacCoun said, is the predicted increase in the number of medical students and the decreasing numbers of foreign doctors that will be permitted to practice in the United States.

MacCoun said there have been only "informal discussions" with various Chicago medical schools about the possibility of Northwest Community becoming a teaching hospital.

"Some of the doctors on staff at the hospital know deans at the schools," he said. But he did not say what schools might be in a position to team up with Northwest.

Plans for the long-range development study were disclosed Monday night at Northwest Community Hospital's annual meeting where Robert Bukowski, Arlington Heights, was installed as chairman of the hospital's board of directors.

Bukowski is senior vice president of Continental Illinois National Bank. A graduate of Northwestern University, he is a director of the Bank and Trust Co. of Arlington Heights, Northwest Trust and Savings Bank, Imoco-Gateway Corp. and Dynabank Corp. He has been on the hospital board since 1967 and succeeds out-going chairman Harold W. Dotts, Arlington Heights.

Kris Howard, Inverness; Dr. John Lynch, Mount Prospect; Mary Morrow and Blaine Yarrington, both of Arlington Heights, also were named directors on the hospital's 20-member board.

'Stay in school'

The straight story from a dropout

The Sermon of Education as preached by interior decorator Al Sowka, goes like this: "Stay in school!" His message to all kids: When you're down and out, when you're upset with teachers and counselors, with science classes and hall monitors, or having no money in your pocket and thinking nobody cares . . . be tougher and STAY IN SCHOOL!

Al knows of what he speaks. That advice does not come from some slick talker. A young man or woman can listen to Al Sowka and believe what they hear.

THAT'S BECAUSE Al did not learn about high school dropouts by reading some book, or citing some statistical data.

Al Sowka never finished high school. He quit twice and was asked to leave once.

That was many years ago, but he still lives with it everyday. Al is 24 years old . . . and happy, too, but only because he got lucky.

Al attended Arlington High School for portions of five years, 1966 through 1970. His last departure was so Al could get married, which he never did.

Two years earlier, Al dropped out because he was frustrated and bored. He returned but did not attend class very frequently, and finally, the school asked him to take some time off and think it over again.

WHICH AL DID for about six months. Then he tried once more, but Al still couldn't hack it.

So Al Sowka dropped out one last time. He will always regret that decision. But he understands it, too.

"You might say I was stubborn," Al said this week. "I grew up in the '60s. I wanted a lot of things my own way. We were all revolutionaries the last four or five years in the '60s. Everybody wanted things their own way."

"The older generation . . . I guess they couldn't handle it."

But it was only a game. A sad game for those who chose to play.

"WE WERE SO hung up on beliefs that we didn't take time out to see the future," Al remembered. "All we cared about was right now."

Mike Klein's people

"We got what we wanted then and now it's over. It was just a fad. I don't think that some kids realized that. They thought it would go on forever."

It was not a popular choice with his parents, Elmer and Vern Sowka. But they accepted his reasons. They let Al try to become an adult in his own way.

"I love my parents," Al said. "They told me I'd be sorry. Here was a naive 16- or 17-year-old kid who hated war, hated school, hated authority and wanted to do it by himself . . . but he didn't do it."

"High school dropout" is not a pretty tag. It suggests someone who is a failure and a loser, a person who could not stick with a task to its logical end.

THAT UPSETS Al Sowka. You see, Al doesn't believe he's a failure. He's just somebody without a high school diploma.

"I've never been fired," Al said proudly. But the jobs did not come easily. Movie theaters wouldn't hire him as a lobby usher. Service stations turned him down as a gasoline pump attendant.

It was always the same story. Prospective employers told Al that his qualifications were just fine . . . but they never called back.

Al was finally hired to wash dishes at $1.75 an hour. "It wasn't much, especially when you've got a girlfriend," Al said. He took home less than $50 per week.

OTHER JOBS would follow. He worked as a U.S. Postal Service carrier, did two stints with the First Arlington National Bank (rising to assistant auditor) and worked in numerous plants. But those jobs usually fizzled out.

Al said he would become bored. The bank wasn't too bad; he liked helping people. But he didn't see himself going anywhere.

"I'm a different kind of dropout," Al admitted. "I care about the future but then again, sometimes I don't. Maybe I'm just depressed. I get depressed like everyone else."

It wasn't until last August that Al finally latched onto something he truly enjoys. He began working for Kimball Hill Inc., interior decorators from Rolling Meadows.

THE ROAD HAS been long for Al Sowka. He has had too many jobs.

"I dread any kid going through what I went through . . . job after job," Al said.

Six years later, Al might have finally found his niche.

"Yeah, I'm very happy now, no complaints," Al said. "I think I've got a good future. The breaks are coming my way." But he admitted, "Who knows how long it will last?"

I interviewed Al late Monday evening. During our conversation, Al was nervous and admitted it freely. Like most people, he's not accustomed to showing the public such an important segment of his life.

Al tried hard to include everything which he thought might be important. It was tough, especially in the beginning.

"I'VE BEEN THINKING all week long what I can tell you," Al said early. "I can't get it all out now."

But Al told his story well. He did not condemn anyone. Problems, Al said, were of his own making.

"My parents went through hell with me," he said. But they stuck by him, too, and Al is thankful.

Al said he has been lucky. Friends helped him find jobs. He wandered about kids today and whether some of them are as frustrated as he was six, seven and eight years ago.

"I was lucky. I knew people. That's how I got my jobs," Al said. "Some kids aren't so lucky."

"I JUST WANT to get it through kids' heads that you shouldn't drop out of school," Al said. He would like to help. "If kids want to talk with me, I'll meet 'em anywhere."

Two hours passed quickly. Al was ready to leave. He would be painting in less than seven hours.

Al walked a couple of steps, then turned back toward the table we had shared. "Put it good, not for my sake, just for the kids," Al said.

Personnel, law conference topics

Personnel executives are confronted by regulations from so many government agencies that the alphabet soup of OSHA, NLRB and other titles can be confusing, said the American Management Assn.

The association developed a program entitled, "personnel and the law," designed to eliminate the confusion about changing standards.

The program will be presented at the association's 47th Annual Personnel Conference, slated Feb. 4-6 at the Palmer House in Chicago. Labor relations, affirmative action programs, safety standards and other government guidelines will be discussed.

'Glory days' were few but Frank Ernaga remembers

I remember Frank Ernaga more vividly, perhaps, than most people do. Most people don't remember him at all.

It was May of 1957 when Ernaga, a 26-year-old Chicago Cub rookie, stepped to the plate at Wrigley Field and belted one over the ivy in his first time at bat in the major leagues. That was the beginning of the end for Ernaga.

"You want to talk to Frank after all these years?" his wife wondered when I had dialed the only Frank Ernaga listed in the Susanville, Cal. directory. Frank Ernaga's wife was amazed. Amazed that anyone would have such a long memory, such a selective memory.

But Mrs. Ernaga wasn't a Cub fan and nine years old in 1957.

When Frank Ernaga hit a home run and a triple in his first big league game and added a homer and a double the next day, Jack Brickhouse announced on the air: "At this rate the kid will break Babe Ruth's record in a month!"

When Brickhouse brought Ernaga in front of a camera for an interview and repeated his home-run hyperbole, the rookie just grinned sheepishly and tried to change the subject.

Ernaga must have known something that none of us knew, because he never hit another home run and played only 29 games in a big league uniform.

Today, Ernaga is in the contracting game in his hometown of Susanville, a small burg in the agricultural region of northeast California. He's been out of baseball since 1959.

"That was a long time ago," he said, trying to recall a time and place that are alien to him now.

Ernaga said he didn't remember much about those days but he certainly remembered more than I did.

"I hit the first homer off a pretty good lefty — Warren Spahn," recalled Ernaga. "Then I tripled and grounded out. The next day we faced a real fastballer, Juan Pizarro — you may remember him — and I had a double the first time up, a homer and a walk.

"It was just one of those things," he continued. "I was pretty happy about it at the time, but I ended up sitting on the bench."

Each stop on the minor-league ladder had brought Ernaga closer to the Cubs — from Stockton and Burlington to Tulsa, to Portland. Finally, four summers after he was signed off the campus of UCLA, the 26-year-old outfielder was a full-fledged, right-handed-hitting member of the Chicago Cubs.

The Cubs finished tied for last place that year, but they were respectable. They flashed some power and introduced a pair of promising right-handers, Dick Drott and Moe Drabowsky.

"The Cubs had a pretty set outfield," remembered Ernaga. "They had Walt Moryn, the 'old man' on the team. And (Jim) Bolger played center field most of the season. And Lee Walls had a pretty good year."

The Cubs also had Bob Speake and Chuck Tanner, and the following year they added Bobby Thomson to the outfield legion.

Ernaga and his .314 batting average had no place to play.

"We had that home stand, then we went on the road and before long I was down in Fort Worth, Texas, and just stayed there. I was floating on air for awhile, but I came down in Fort Worth."

"That next year they tried to make a catcher out of me," he explained. "I caught a few games in spring training and split a finger. Then they tried me at third base. Before long I was in San Antonio."

As a Cub, Ernaga got into just nine games in 1958, all as a pinch hitter. The next year he was traded and wound up in the Washington farm system. The Senators offered Ernaga a job as manager of their Elmira (N.Y.) team, but he turned it down.

"By then I was pretty much tired of baseball so I decided to come back home and go into business," said Ernaga.

To this day, Ernaga rejects the notion that his incredibly auspicious debut jinxed him through the rest of his baseball career. A total of 49 others have matched Ernaga's feat of a home run the first time up, and none of them are in the Hall of Fame.

"We had another guy on that Cub team, Chuck Tanner, who hit a homer his first time," recalled Ernaga. "Look what happened to him."

Tanner, who hit the first of his 21 major league home runs as a pinch hitter for Henry Aaron, is now managing for Charles O. Finley, the ultimate jinx.

If Ernaga was the victim of a jinx, he wouldn't admit it. The rookie hit two homers before he had unpacked all of his bags, but he never suffered from delusions of grandeur.

"I was just an average ballplayer," he said. "I was no superstar."

Which came as a blow to a nine-year-old Cub fan who imagined Frank Ernaga was good for 3,000 homers.

Elk Grove captures 15th win; Harper tops Morton

by BOB GALLAS

The Elk Grove Grenadiers parlayed red-hot first and third quarters into a narrow win over Hersey, 64-61 at the Grens' gym Tuesday night.

The win was the 15th of the season against four losses for Elk Grove and ties a team record. Hersey is now 12-5 after the Mid-Suburban League cross-over contest.

Elk Grove opened with a barrage of shooting as Elk Grove guard Joe Parmentier kept hitting the open shot at the free throw line. Hersey helped out with a bunch of turnovers as the Grens burst to a 20-12 lead at the end of the first quarter.

But then it was Hersey's turn as the Grens cooled down and Hersey's big men started hitting underneath. The Huskies took a 33-27 lead to the half-time locker room.

Hersey switched to a zone defense to open the second half, but Grove quickly figured it out, hitting 19 points in the last five minutes of the quarters to take a 50-45 lead.

Down by 10 with four minutes left in the game, Hersey came back to within three with 54 seconds left at 62-59, but Elk Grove's Dave Hornacek put the game away for the Grens when he drove in off the stall with 37 seconds remaining.

Guard play was a particular problem for the Huskies who just couldn't put together an effective attack. "Our guards haven't been playing well since Christmas," said Huskie coach Roger Steingraber.

"As a team we're not playing well, Steingraber said. "We went to the zone to change things, and we weren't even getting rebounds. When you don't get rebounds off the zone, you're in trouble," he said.

Elk Grove stumbled badly in the second period, as they were outscored 21-7, something Grens' coach Joe Parmentier took some of the blame for.

"I guess I was a little too concerned about their (Hersey's) inside game," Parmentier said. "I had our kids drop back inside when our game is pressure defense," he said.

The Grens put up a balanced attack as four starters finished in double figures. Elk Grove shot a hot 56 per cent from the field, compared to Hersey's 46 per cent.

The Grens fared poorly from the free throw line, hitting only eight out of 26. But the Huskies couldn't even get to the line, hitting three in just four attempts.

Arden collects 34

by CHARLIE DICKINSON

Jim Arden gunned in 34 points and Steve Loughman and Wally Butman shared 34 as the Harper Hawks outlasted a ragged but determined Morton outfit 87-76.

The Hawks took a step toward the break even level on the season at 9-11 as they led by as many as 17 points during the game.

Morton, on the strength of little guard Ken Smulski's 26 points, kept fighting back and didn't lose sight of the game until the final minutes.

"I think we took them lightly," said Harper head coach Roger Bechtold. "We were looking to Rock Valley."

The Rock Valley game will be Thursday at St. Vitor beginning at 8 p.m.

Harper took apparent control of the game several times the first when they ran off 11 unanswered points early in the first half to break a 17-17 tie.

Arden struck for 17 points in the first half as the Hawk offense worked the ball quickly around the horn to free him for jumpers from the corners.

But Smulski, who is listed at 5-9 but plays, as they say, "at 5-4," hit three long jumpers and set up John Kozel for two other baskets in the next three minutes to pull back within three points of the Hawks.

"That little guy killed us," Bechtold said. "Morton doesn't have that good a record but they lost 100-98 to Mayfair and to Triton by three points so they aren't any pushovers."

Loughman, who had 16 points for the game, kept Morton honest from the outside.

Butman, who canned 16 points and was described by Bechtold as "a one man rebounding machine," missed two early layups but came back with another strong game.

"Wally has matured as a player," Bechtold said. "Last year after he missed these shots he would have looked for somebody to foul."

"He doesn't get down on himself now. He's got confidence."

Wheeling falls

by KEITH REINHARD

Lightning may not strike twice in the same location but it can evidently seek out the same subject. Led by chief thunderbolt Bob Erickson, Libertyville blitzed Wheeling for the second time this season Tuesday night, 65-48.

The last time these two Wildcat clubs hooked up was at the Provost West tournament and Erickson pummeled the nets for 26 to key an 85-71 Libertyville triumph. This time the site was Wheeling and Erickson netted "only" 25.

Thirteen of Erickson's points came in succession this time, however, after the hosts had broken into a quick 3-4 lead. Hitting five straight outside jumpers, the 6-3 junior single-handedly directed Libertyville into a 19-17 advantage and they were never headed again.

The visitors followed up Erickson's potent opening with a solid defense performance and a rugged showing on the boards. Wheeling was seldom able to penetrate and had few second shot opportunities all evening.

Backing up Erickson was Baker Green with 13 as the guests upped their over-all record to 14-5.

Wheeling was led in scoring by Keith Schick and Brian Bagrowski with 19 apiece. The setback dropped their over-all slate to 8-9.

When basketball winning streaks are talked about, the Los Angeles Lakers' 33 and the UCLA Bruins' 58 are usually mentioned.

Not too many people talk about Baskins (La.) High School's mark. Under Coach "Tiny" Tarbutton, Baskins won 218 games!

And it might surprise some basketball fans to know that Tarbutton was a woman and Baskins was a girls' team!

Fremd's girls have been the Baskins of the Mid-Suburban League, winning 25 and losing none over the past three seasons. But you won't find Fremd Viking coach Carol Plodzien and her team worrying about their perfect record as the MSL season begins tonight.

The schedule has Schaumburg at Fremd, Arlington at Forest View, Conant at Buffalo Grove, Hersey at Hoffman Estates, Palatine at Elk Grove and Prospect at Wheeling.

"I'll admit that it does add to the pressure," said Plodzien. "I think the team can handle it, I really do."

"We figure it's (a loss) going to happen to us one day. And when it comes, I figure we'll be ready for it."

Rolling Meadows nearly brought "it" about last March in the MSL championship. The Mustangs outscored the Vikings 19-11 in the final quarter, losing a thriller, 53-49.

Fremd has virtually its entire starting team back to defend its title. Leading the Vikings are two all-conference players — senior Heidi Giesler (5-foot-7) and junior Colleen Cannon (5-4).

Cannon and Giesler, who averaged 15 and 14 points respectively, are joined by these veterans — center Margaret Hamill (5-11), forward Do-

"It's the first year we have some height," said Plodzien. "Rebounding was probably our lowest area last year."

"Our defense is definitely a strong point. Also our accurate shooting and quick passing."

Rolling Meadows may have trouble repeating as the South Division champion because Pam Klein (5-8) is the only returning starter.

"We're very, very young and inexperienced," said Meadows coach Elaine Wisson. "But we've got a lot of movement — more than last year — and we have more people who can shoot."

Figuring to give Fremd its toughest challenge in the North Division again this season is Wheeling. The past two seasons the Wildcats of Coach Donna Dubbele lost to Fremd by one and two points, respectively.

Deftly the perennial champs might pose a problem for Wheeling. Sophomore star Sandy Rainey will be

When basketball winning streaks are talked about, the Los Angeles Lakers' 33 and the UCLA Bruins' 58 are usually mentioned.

Not too many people talk about Baskins (La.) High School's mark. Under Coach "Tiny" Tarbutton, Baskins won 218 games!

And it might surprise some basketball fans to know that Tarbutton was a woman and Baskins was a girls' team!

Fremd's girls have been the Baskins of the Mid-Suburban League, winning 25 and losing none over the past three seasons. But you won't find Fremd Viking coach Carol Plodzien and her team worrying about their perfect record as the MSL season begins tonight.

The schedule has Schaumburg at Fremd, Arlington at Forest View, Conant at Buffalo Grove, Hersey at Hoffman Estates, Palatine at Elk Grove and Prospect at Wheeling.

"I'll admit that it does add to the pressure," said Plodzien. "I think the team can handle it, I really do."

"We figure it's (a loss) going to happen to us one day. And when it comes, I figure we'll be ready for it."

Rolling Meadows nearly brought "it" about last March in the MSL championship. The Mustangs outscored the Vikings 19-11 in the final quarter, losing a thriller, 53-49.

Fremd has virtually its entire starting team back to defend its title. Leading the Vikings are two all-conference players — senior Heidi Giesler (5-foot-7) and junior Colleen Cannon (5-4).

Cannon and Giesler, who averaged 15 and 14 points respectively, are joined by these veterans — center Margaret Hamill (5-11), forward Donelda Danz (5-10) and guard Connie Bruns (5-2½). Three tall substitutes are Kathy Uhrich (5-7), Kathy Pfander (5-10½) and Cindy Nelson (5-7).

"It's the first year we have some height," said Plodzien. "Rebounding was probably our lowest area last year."

"Our defense is definitely a strong point. Also our accurate shooting and quick passing."

Rolling Meadows may have trouble repeating as the South Division champion because Pam Klein (5-8) is the only returning starter.

"We're very, very young and inexperienced," said Meadows coach Elaine Wisson. "But we've got a lot of movement — more than last year — and we have more people who can shoot."

Figuring to give Fremd its toughest challenge in the North Division again this season is Wheeling. The past two seasons the Wildcats of Coach Donna Dubbele lost to Fremd by one and two points, respectively.

Deftly the perennial champs might pose a problem for Wheeling. Sophomore star Sandy Rainey will be

New elite wears cleats

LOS ANGELES — NEWS ITEM: "Lawyer Says If Andy Messersmith Loses Appeal, The Pitcher May Have To Take Himself Off Multi-Million Dollar Auction Block And Go Back To Dodgers For More $220,000."

There was a time in this country when a man had to make his millions on railroads, oil, cattle, steel, munitions or shipping. Now, he makes it on curveballs, crackback blocks, sideline patterns, trap shots, dunk shots and services aces.

The new elite in this country wears cleats.

The robber barons were pikers. They had to corner markets, start wars, put together monopolies to start their family wealth. Today, you pitch seven innings, play mixed doubles, play half a game of football, or sink three 40-foot putts. The portrait in the mansion library of the founding father in the future is a guy with a number on his chest, a helmet on his head and a club, bat or ball in his hands.

The family fortune may be based on stealing bases, not land, bootleg plays, not liquor.

So, what was so great about The Good Old Days?

Come with me to the halcyon hours of 1933, past the headlines, soup kitchens, NRA eagles, being careful under tall buildings for falling stockbrokers. In the clubhouse of the New York Giants, Frederick Landis Fitzsimmons, a right-handed pitcher, is packing for a road trip.

He folds his uniform carefully because it will not be laundered again for 21 days, duration of the swing west. The club will be quartered two-to-a-room in un-air-conditioned hotels that may or may not have a shower down the hall.

The meal money is $4 a day and some on the club save out of that. Peanut-butter sandwiches are very big on the club because bread is only a nickel a loaf.

They call Fitzsimmons "Fat Freddie" because he is as wide as the back of a cab and wears uniforms two sizes too large so he can hide knuckleballs from the batter in the folds of white flapping around him.

Fat Freddie is a very good pitcher indeed. He is one of only 69 pitchers in major-league history to have won more than 200 games. He won 217 and lost 146. Andy Messersmith will probably never win 217.

Fitzsimmons is one of only 46 major league pitchers to have started more than 400 games (426). He is one of less than 100 to have completed more than 100 (184). Fitzsimmons hated to give the ball up and once retreated behind the shortstop and threatened to throw the ball at the manager if he came one step closer. Fitzsimmons pitched in a game once where a line drive broke his kneecap. He ran under the carom, caught it, then collapsed.

Fitzsimmons was paid $9,500 a year in his great days with the New York Giants. He helped to pitch them to two pennants, and was one of the unluckiest World Series players that ever lived.

In 1936, the New York Yankees had a lineup that consisted mostly of Hall of Famers with a smattering of All-Stars. They won the second game in a squeaker, 18-4. The next day, Fitzsimmons held this same lineup for four hits, two of which didn't get out of the infield and one of which, the winning one, glanced off Fik's glove. The Giants had 11 hits but Fitzsimmons lost, 2-1.

In 1941's series, with Brooklyn, he had shut the Yankees out for seven innings until that line drive broke his kneecap making the last out of the inning. He had allowed only four hits but his relief lost it.

Fitzsimmons didn't have agents, lawyers, unions or player's reps. The courts had better things to worry about than ballplayers' salary negotiations. In fact, John McGraw, the manager, used to pay switchboard operators to let him listen in on players' calls. If you didn't like it, McGraw would invite you to see if you might like it any better in Perth Amboy.

Fitzsimmons pitched for 19 years in the big leagues and his cumulative salary for all those years would make a 500 pitcher hold out today if offered it for one year.

Fitzsimmons was one of the stars on the new public television series "The Way It Was," which recently began its 1976 programming of sports nostalgia.

"The Way It Was" is a light year from the way it is. For Fitzsimmons, now 74 and the squire of Yuca Valley, the grand old game was grander when it was played in the Polo Grounds, not the Federal Building. To his way of thinking, nobody from the way it was ever amassed enough money to go into Wall Street or even downtown Miami to found family dynasties.

But, on the other hand, there was no danger that when someone would say "Grandfather made his money in baseball" to some grandchild in the future, the kid would say: "Baseball? What was that?"

Young Bulls back Dick Motta and...

Chicago Bulls Coach Dick Motta said "the last thing I need is a vote of confidence," but he got one anyway. And it came from the people who should mean the most to him, his young players.

Rookie John Laskowski was the spokesman at a news conference called Tuesday by the rookies or second year men, half of the Bulls' 12 player roster. He was backed up by Leon Benbow, Cliff Pondexter, Mickey Johnson and Eric Fernsten. Bobby Wilson was to have attended, but Laskowski explained he was "late."

"I think the young players all agree Coach Motta is doing an excellent job," Laskowski said.

"I can't speak for the veteran players because their coaching has been done. They're just out there to play. If the people hear with us, we're learning every day, and if not this year, in the future, we're going to be a heck of a ball team."

"Coach Motta's teaching us what to do and how to win. He's only had one bad year and that's this year, and I think one of the reasons is so many young players."

Motta did not attend the conference. But he said later he and assistant coach Ed Badger were "very encouraged" by the players' action.

"We're still going to be a good team some day," he said. "It was encouraging to find a couple of players who were willing to stand up and express their opinion."

...team beats Warriors

John Laskowski scored 11 fourth-quarter points Tuesday night to carry the Chicago Bulls to a 110-103 victory over the Golden State Warriors.

Laskowski scored his 11 points in seven minutes.

Chicago took a 31-28 lead after one period by driving to the basket, causing Warriors centers Cliff Ray, George Johnson and Dwight Davis to pick up a total of nine fouls.

The Bulls built up a 54-50 lead at the half, but the Warriors came back to gain the edge behind Rick Barry, who scored 11 of his 19 points in the third period.

Game scoring honors went to Phil Smith of Golden State with 27 points. Chicago's Mickey Johnson had 21.

The victory was the Bulls' 13th in 44 games and Golden State is now 33-12.

Goolagong wins, 6-1, 7-5

Evoone Goolagong of Australia defeated Iris Riedel of Germany, 6-1, 7-5, Tuesday to lead three more seeded players into the third round of the $75,000 Virginia Slims of Chicago tennis tournament.

Goolagong advanced to a third round match Wednesday.

Riedel, 20, in her first season on the Slims tour, started shaky but mounted a strong challenge in the second set and at one point led 5-3 in games.

In other early matches, No. 4 seeded Olga Norozova of the Soviet Union had no difficulty advancing over Time Zwaan of Holland 6-3, 6-1, and Wendy Overton of Boca Raton, Fla., the eighth-seeded player, struggled past fellow Floridian Kathy Kuykendall, 6-4, 6-4.

Fifth-seeded Francoise Durr of France, ailing from a lingering attack of hepatitis, was forced to default her second round singles match with Cynthia Doerner of Australia. She also withdrew from the doubles.

Will Walker sue Bulls?

As if the Chicago Bulls didn't have enough problems, it was rumored Tuesday that former star Chet Walker would soon file a $2 million antitrust suit against the team and the NBA unless he is traded or things are worked out to his satisfaction. . . . Walker retired unofficially before this season, although the option year of his contract has yet to be filled. . . . The constitutionality of that option is being challenged.

The seven existing American Basketball Assn. clubs agreed Tuesday to put up $1.5 million to assure the financially troubled league will be around next season. . . . "This is the best situation the ABA has been in anytime, anywhere," said Commissioner Dave DeBusschere. . . . Goalie Gerry Cheevers is now free of any obligations to the Cleveland Crusaders of the World Hockey Assn. and is expected to begin talks with the team he once jumped — the Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League. . . . Cheevers and the Crusaders officially voided a seven-year contract Tuesday. . . . Selection of Jack Burke Jr. and Doug Ford as the newest members of the Professional Golfers Assn. Hall of Fame was announced Tuesday.

Henry Beucha of the Minnesota Fighting Saints has filed a $3.5 million civil suit related to an on-ice fight last year with Dave Forbes of the Boston Bruins. . . . The University of Oklahoma Tuesday officially announced the hiring of the oldest of three All-American brothers as an assistant football coach and counselor. . . . Lucious Seimon was a 1973 All-America noseguard and his two younger brothers were first team All-America choices in 1975.

Girls' basketball play begins

sidelined most of the season with torn foot ligaments.

"Sandy's absence is going to hurt us," said Dubbedle. But she still has hopes because she has 10 fine players of equal ability.

Elk Grove was the South runnerup to Meadows last year. Grenadier coach Marsha Gordon's team upset Prospect en route to the MSL runner-up game. Then the Grans lost to Wheeling in the playoff, 45-30.

Two starters return — senior Laura Barry (5-7) and sophomore guard Karyn Mullen. A junior varsity team that finished with a fine 6-1 record could give the Grenadiers a contender this year.

The coaches of last year's top four finishers said that Hersey, Buffalo Grove and Arlington appeared strong in the North and Hoffman Estates, Forest View and Prospect looked like contenders in the South.

Mid-Suburban wrestling heads for tense finish

by KEITH REINHARD
Wrestling Editor

It's official now. There will be four teams deadlocked for first going into the Mid-Suburban's conference wrestling tournament early next month.

Defending champion Hersey filled in the last berth by stopping Palatine Friday: 24-18 while Buffalo Grove was turning back Wheeling 28-21. The Huskies (4-1) and Bison (4-1) from the North Division now join with South circuit co-champs Conant (5-1) and Elk Grove (5-1) as slight favorites in the MSL showdown less than two weeks away.

Another significant dual meet conducted over the past weekend saw Schaumburg crunch Fremd 28-16 Saturday. It was the first time in 13 divisional crossover matches this winter that the South came up a winner.

Previously this year Buffalo Grove had bettered Hoffman Estates, Rolling Meadows and Prospect, Hersey had toppled Schaumburg, Palatine and Fremd had both disposed of the Mustangs. Wheeling had knocked off Forest View and Arlington had beaten Prospect and . . . yes . . . both the South loop kingpins, Conant and Elk Grove.

The Cardinals would probably have chosen to compete in the South this season had the option been there. Against North teams the Redbirds wound up with a 2-3 mark good for a fourth place tie.

Saturday Palatine squeaked past Elk Grove 23-21 and Wheeling humped Hoffman 27-23 before the Saxons stemmed the North domination. These statistics, however, are considered to have little bearing on a MSL tourney rated the most wide open over.

In other action Friday, Maine West's perfect Central Suburban South won-loss slate was more than slightly tarnished by a fired-up hosting Glenbrook South contingent. The Titans captured all but three of 12 bouts in ringing up a 39-12 conquest and the Warriors now own a 4-1 league record.

Maine West did rebound the next day with a triple win at Ridgewood, jacking their overall mark to a hefty 14-5.

In one other interesting area hookup Friday, St. Viator pummeled Prospect 31-11. The Lions had previously lost to three other MSL schools but they are still 7-9 now overall.

College basketball

The college basketball battle tonight between DePaul and Notre Dame in South Bend will be covered live on radio and television. Bob Houghton of WWM-D-FM (92.7) will call the action on radio starting at 8:45 p.m. with the Coach Ray Meyer Show. Chick Hearn will be at the television microphones (Channel 9) at 7 p.m.

Teddy's rolls to seven in Classic

by GENE KIRKHAM

Bowling at Fair Lanes Rolling Meadows Bowl, the Paddock Classic League had one seven point winner and three very close match games which could have gone to any of the teams involved.

Teddy's Liquors was the seven-point winner with a victory over Dick McFeely Pontiac. Led by Don Sawicki's 611 series, Teddy's rolled team games of 977, 966, and 895 for a 2838 team total. McFeely Pontiac had games of 946, 901, and 880 for a 2607 total. Sawicki's 611 series was built around games of 186, 223, and 282. Teddy's sweep moved them to within five points of the leaders.

Formeo Metal Products and Oost Produce had the unusual distinction of tying for the series point at 2847 total pins apiece. Oost Produce won four and one-half points to Formeo's two and one-half.

Oost won the first two games with 965 and 972 while Formeo was hitting 937 and 914. Formeo's 908 to 910 win in the third game brought about the series tie and gave them a two point lead over Oost for the league leadership.

Rich Moores of Oost held the hottest hand in the nights' action as he pounded out 246, 187, and 236 for a 671 series. Glenn Chesser added his 647 series with games of 222, 235, and 190. For Formeo Metal Products Fred Hansen had games of 192, 196, and 246 for a 636 total.

Pickwick House and Buffalo Grove Striker Lanes traded points with Pickwick House winning four and Striker Lanes winning three with the series going to Striker by only 12 pins.

Pickwick House won the first and third games with 975 and 971 to total 2824 while Striker Lanes won the second game by a big margin with 964 and stayed close the final game with 950 as they totaled 2836.

Rey Ischer of Striker Lanes led the scoring in this match with games of 227, 206, and 192, for a 619 series.

Beverly Lanes won five points from Des Plaines Ace Hardware as these two teams were separated by only 21 pins in their series totals with Beverly winning the series point 2864 to Ace Hardware's 2883.

Des Plaines Ace won the first game with 906 while Beverly Lanes won the next two with 1012 and 979. Ray Stiber of Des Plaines Ace Hardware led the scoring in this match with games of 213, 263, and 308 for a 624 series. For Beverly Lanes Bob Glaser had 607 with games of 201, 216, and 190 and Ernie Koche had 606 with games of 170, 222, and 213.

L-Tran marches into women's lead

The Paddock Women's Classic Traveling League had the unusual situation of four seven point sweeps while bowling at Fair Lanes Rolling Meadows.

L-Tran Engineering won seven from Striking Lanes to move into first place by two points over the Striking team.

L-Tran had games of 968, 984, and 919 to total 2871 while Striking stayed close with games of 827, 882, and 896 for 2607.

Lorrie Nichols led her L-Tran team with a 601 series with games of 212, 181, and 208. Toshi Inahara had 549, and Marlis Pleckhardt had a 515.

For Striking Lanes Lu Schoenberger had a 587 series following a 136 game with Ames of 234 and 217. Bette Breile added 214-562.

Petterson Safety Service jumped from seventh to fifth place with their seven point win over Mason Shoes. Winning the first game by only five, 892 to 887, Petterson went on to 928 and 948 games to total 2768 which was the highest team total of the night. Nancy Porcellus of Petterson led the league in individual scoring with her 641 series. Porcellus had games of 228, 211, and 202.

Teammate Winnie Lohse added her own 618 series with games of 187, 222, and 208. Bobbie Kostelny had 524 and Dee Harris had 500 even. For Mason Shoes Peggy Wales had 551, Kathy Ziemienski had 537, Sandi Malenk had 213-521, and Irma Faust had 503.

Ziebart stayed in third place with their seven point win over Thunderbird Country Club. Ziebart hit games of 876, 854, and 991 to total 2721 while Thunderbird hit 2514.

Consistent scoring did it for Ziebart as Tiny Cazel had 558, Carol Anderson had 200-557, Peggy Harris had 204-556, Joan Christensen had 203-550, and Sue Capizano had 500.

For Thunderbird Country Club Jean Ladd had 222-538, Mary Yurs had 551, and Dee Kachelmus had 541.

Ten Pin Bowl won seven points from Lass Excavating to hold their share of third place. Ten Pin totaled 2699 with games of 860, 835, and 904 while Lass Excavating totaled 2454.

Ethel Juenger led the scoring for Ten Pin with 289-575, Marge Lindenberg had 547, Gloria Lucchesi had 200-532, Betty Peterman had 531 and Joan Plywack had 514. For Lass Ex-

Steak and Enchiladas $3.95 Wednesday night.

Something very special is happening on Wednesday night at the Boar's Head Restaurant.

Steak and enchiladas.

For only $3.95, you get a juicy steak, two cheese enchiladas, salad and coffee, tea or milk.

The steak is choice top sirloin, and the enchiladas are ground corn tortillas, topped and filled with cheddar cheese and a not-too-mild, not-too-spicy sauce.

Drop into the Boar's Head Restaurant on Wednesday night. We think you'll agree that this is the best dinner deal in town. In fact, we'll stake our enchiladas on it.

You can't tell these are 1975 carpets until you price them.

We've just received a massive 25 truckload order of carpeting from the country's largest mills in Dalton, Georgia. It represents the final run on 1975 carpets - pattern trials, closeouts, surplus items and remnants. And they're all on sale right now, through Saturday, February 7.

So if you were unable to buy the carpeting you need before the holidays, be glad you waited. Because our volume purchase enables us to offer brand name quality carpeting at lower prices than you'd have had to pay just two months ago.

per square yard

You'll find the very carpet you're looking for, for any room in your home. Shags, prints, candy stripes, confetti patterns and loops - foam-backed and jute - in a rainbow of colors!

Naturally, the lowest priced carpeting will go fast. So come in early, while the selection is greatest.

Below our regular warehouse discounts

Don't confuse this sale with Plywood Minnesota's regular low prices on carpeting, which are consistently below other outlets.

sale prices. These are all on special purchase and we're passing the super savings on to you. So if you're wondering whether your old carpeting is worth cleaning one more time, you owe it to yourself to come in to your nearest Plywood Minnesota warehouse first.

Remember, the only way you can tell that your new carpeting was milled in 1975 is by the huge savings you realize right now.

Camp Duncan

The Camp Duncan YMCA Swim Team participated in the Chicago and Ill.-Centennial Open AAU Swim Meet this past weekend at the University of Chicago, Circle Campus, pool. Fifty-three teams and several unattached swimmers competed for the exceptionally fine individual and team trophies.
 The Camp Duncan Dolphins made a fine showing, capturing the third place overall team trophy. The entire CDT team was not able to enter the AAU meet as they also had two dual meets scheduled for the same time.
 Dolphin swimmers taking home trophies include:

 Jill Harvey, Laura Clavis, Melissa Madey, Barbara Teuscher, Lisa Dunn, Nate Lierand, Herb Bruntlinger, Greg Rohl, David Frey.
 Terry Pantaleo, Lori Conlin, Amy White-wick, Mary Sutter, John Clavis, Henry Mather, John Ratcliffe, Todd Callaway.
11 & 12

13 & 14
 Linda Walkowiak, Ann Rusche, Kathy Teuscher, Cheryl Kashner, Pam Ratcliffe, Sharon Ratcliffe, Eddy Lierand, Chris Takata, Jan Stewart, Pat Murray, Mike Harvey, Tim Knight, Mark Funk.
 Sue Crope, Lynn Atkinson, Cheryl Takata, Nancy Combs, Bob Tatolian, Jim Lindsay, John Elliot.

JESTERS 4, CAROL STREAM 3
 The Jesters dominated the moment, outshooting Carol Stream 3-1. Kabat scored a hat trick and Colanico got the other goal. Assist went to Brunner and Dunne.
JESTERS 4, ELINOR 2
 Brunner, Dunne, and Kabat scored goals in this penalty-ridden game which saw the Jesters outshoot the opponents 22-16. Shipbaugh was goalie for the winners.

ARLINGTON 4, JESTERS 3
 The Arlington All-Stars held the Jesters to 12 shots on goal and pulled away with three scores in the final period.

HIGHLAND PARK 3
 The Jesters scored four times in the second period to wipe out a 3-1 deficit and the defense led by Bartlett and Lunko took care of the rest. Jester goals were by Sterling (2), Budlowe (2), Olczyk and Dunne.

JESTERS 1, OAK PARK 1
 Shipbaugh in goal led a fine defensive effort and Simon's goal assisted by Brunner gave the Jesters a tie game, despite the fact that they were outshot 24-7 by Oak Park's strong power team.

JESTERS 0, PEERWEE 0
 The Jesters outshot the Spartan Peewees but lost the game on a first-period goal. Shipbaugh again turned in a fine job in goal.

JESTERS 1, S&C 1
 The Jesters downed the Saddle and Cycle Peewees with strong backchecking.

Twelve Year Effort Ends With Unprecedented Flavor In Low Tar Smoke.

New 'Enriched Flavor' discovery for 9 mg. tar MERIT achieves taste of cigarettes having 60% more tar.

---

The greatest challenge to cigarette makers in the last two decades has been how to make a low tar cigarette that wasn't "low" in taste.

It seemed impossible.

After twelve long, hard, often frustrating years, Philip Morris has developed the way to do it.

The cigarette is called MERIT. It

Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health.

delivers only 9 mg. of tar. One of the lowest tar levels in smoking today. Yet MERIT delivers astonishing flavor.

If you're looking to become a low tar smoker, or don't particularly enjoy the taste of the low tar brand you smoke now—you'll be interested.

Low Tar, Good Taste: Filters Fall Short

Like most everyone else, we tried to design special "low tar, good taste" filters. Special filters that would somehow allow taste through but not tar.

Like others, we experienced the same general kind of results: the lower the tar, the lower the taste.

So for flavor, we concentrated on the business end of smoking. The tobacco end.

And decided if we wanted more flavor to come through, we'd just have to find a way to start with more.

Smoke Cracked:

'Enriched Flavor' Discovery

So we began an exhaustive research program in cigarette smoke analysis and the ingredients that actually comprise cigarette taste.

By using a very sensitive instrument called an Analytical Fractometer, we were able to "crack" cigarette smoke down into its various ingredients.

We found there are over 2000 separate ingredients in smoke.

Each was isolated and analyzed, one by one.

What we discovered was startling: there are ingredients in tobacco—"key" basic flavor units—that deliver taste way out-of-proportion to tar.

Breakthrough.

By fortifying tobacco with these natural flavor essentials, we're now able to pack flavor—extraordinary flavor—into a cigarette without the usual increase in tar.

The discovery is called 'Enriched Flavor.' It's extra flavor. Flavor that can't burn out, can't fade out, can't do anything but come through for you.

Taste-Tested By People Like You

9 mg. tar MERIT was taste-tested against five current leading low tar cigarette brands ranging from 11 mg. to 15 mg. tar.

Thousands of smokers were involved. Smokers of filter cigarettes like yourself, all tested at home.*

The results were conclusive:

Even if the cigarette tested had 60% more tar, a significant majority of all smokers tested reported new 'Enriched Flavor' MERIT delivered more taste.

Repeat: delivered more taste.

In similar tests against 11 mg. to 15 mg. menthol brands, 9 mg. tar MERIT MENTHOL performed strongly, too, delivering as much—or more—taste than the higher tar brands tested.

You've been smoking "low tar, good taste" claims long enough. Now you've got the cigarette. MERIT.

Incredible smoking pleasure at only 9 mg. tar.

A babe is born

French obstetrician believes process can be less violent

by ELEANOR RIVES
(First of two parts)

The labor is over, the contractions cease, the babe is born. His first loud squall is music to the ears of the new mother and father who laugh with delight.

The infant howls. Contorts his face. Sobs. Could this be pain? Could this be terror?

Birth for the baby is at best an abrupt process. According to some doctors, it is more than that — it is a violent experience.

Still wet from his mother's warm womb, the infant enters what must seem a freezing world. Bright lights shine blindingly into his tender eyes. His ears, conditioned through nine months to muffled sound, are assaulted with noise. His throat and lungs are seared with rushing air as he breathes for the first time. He is panic-stricken as he feels the sensation of his own weight for the first time.

SOMETIMES he is held upside down by the feet. Seized with vertigo, his body, so long folded, now painfully extends under his own weight.

Poor baby. No wonder he howls!

In his book, "Birth Without Violence" (Alfred A. Knopf, 1975), Dr. Frederick Leboyer, French obstetrician, helps the reader view the birth process through the eyes of the baby. And he demands changes in delivery room techniques to make that process less painful, less traumatic, less violent for the newborn.

His is a humanistic approach to birth.

Dim the lights once the head has emerged, maintain silence, speak in whispers. Lay the newborn across the mother's warm abdomen. Let the touch of her hands reassure the infant, calm him, convey her love to him. Let the umbilical cord continue to supply part of the baby's oxygen while his lungs gradually take over until a heart orifice automatically closes, the cord stops pulsating, and the baby is breathing on his own. No danger of lack of oxygen, no frantic convulsing to begin breathing.

Hold the baby in a warm bath — gently, tenderly — where he again encounters the pleasure of weightlessness, the same weightlessness he knew bathed in the amniotic fluid in the womb. Hold him there until his muscles relax, his little fingers unfold, he opens his eyes wide, and miraculously — he begins to explore, to kick, to play.

THESE ARE the techniques Dr. Leboyer has found so effective in delivering 1,000 babies in the past eight years. Before that he had delivered 9,000 babies the old way. In text and photographs, he shows how to replace the ugly, terrified expression on the face of the newborn baby with one of peace, even rapture. The final photograph in his book shows a newborn with an unmistakable smile on his face — and the babe is not yet 24 hours old.

Leboyer's book has created quite a stir among mothers-to-be. Hospitals in the northwest suburbs and in Chicago report that there have been many inquiries.

"But the hospital cannot be expected to have a fixed policy about techniques of delivery," said Dr.

Louis Keith of Northwestern University Medical School and Prentice Hospital. "These depend entirely on the doctor and the wishes of the mother."

"Physicians are bombarded with new techniques all the time. Leboyer's method is just one of them. His book is just one of a great number of textbooks available to medical students. Many options are available."

DR. RONALD CHUDIK, Alexian Medical Center obstetrician, agreed. "If a patient requests it, I am willing to go along with Leboyer methods, so long as they do not contradict my medical knowledge," he said. "But if, at any point, some procedure might be dangerous to either mother or baby, I won't do it."

He has had several inquiries about Leboyer techniques and has employed some of those techniques in one delivery. "But I don't encourage it," he said.

To Dr. Chudik, common sense demands that you have good lighting in the delivery room so the physician can see if mother and baby are doing well. He likes to see that a baby is doing well before the mother handles him, and he considers a warm incubator a better environment for the newborn than the warm bath, because of the cooling effect of evaporation when the baby is removed from the water.

"A survey of doctors in this area showed that most of them — about 75 per cent — do not favor using the Leboyer techniques completely," he said. "That is not to say that they refuse to participate. Doctors will go along with these things so long as the situation is under control. It's just basic 'common sense.'"

AT LUTHERAN General Hospital, none of the Leboyer techniques have been employed, but neonatologist Dr. Henry Mangurten, director of the high-risk nursery, had read of them in medical newsletters.

"Some things bother me," he said. "For instance, dim lights. In a hazardous pregnancy, couldn't you miss some important factor? How can you easily observe the baby's breathing pattern? I sure wouldn't want to fail to detect an abnormality."

The water bath is another cause of concern to him. Since water predisposes to bacterial infection, he suggests that the bath must be guaranteed sterile and clean. He also points out that the delivery room is a cool environment and a wet baby loses body heat very rapidly.

"Leboyer's methods do bear evaluation," said Dr. Mangurten. "We can't tune out on him; we may be missing out on something. But it's dangerous to blindly accept or reject any new methods without seeking factual information. We must make absolutely sure there are no hazards."

"I can agree with reducing the stress of birth," he added. "Yet millions of babies already born seem not to have suffered from it."

From the physician's standpoint, the value of Leboyer's technique hinges on the question, "Is it adding anything to current obstetrical care?"

Next: Medical opinions, pro and con, and one doctor who has followed Leboyer methods in recent deliveries.

A habit not easily abandoned

by ROBIN FRAMES and MARK FUERST
(Third of 10 parts)

In order to quit smoking, it's more important to know first why you smoke than why you want to give up the habit. Frequently the snap answer is an indignant "Because I like to," or "Because if I didn't I'd climb the walls."

Many ex-smokers, however, have discovered that the answer isn't that simple. Regular smokers have so woven the habit into the fabric of their lives that it is associated with nearly everything they do, from the first cup of coffee to the last nightcap, including all the pleasures and pains, achievements and failures in between. This kind of constant companion is not easily abandoned.

A successful technique recommended by the American Cancer Society (ACS) involves taking notes on when and why you smoke each cigarette and how much you really need it. The smoker asks himself, for example, if he smokes to keep from slowing down, to relieve tension or when he's already relaxed. Does he associate smoking with particular activities?

THOMAS ROSS in "You Can Quit Smoking in 14 Days" and Julius Fast, author of "How to Stop Smoking and Lose Weight," advise putting questions and answers on a sheet of paper which is wrapped around the smoker's pack of cigarettes with rubber bands. Each time he wants to smoke, he must unwrap and write down his reasons for smoking that particular cigarette.

June Walzer, director of the New York Cancer Society quit-smoking clinics, requires her clinic members to "wrap" in this fashion.

All smokers do not smoke for the same reasons. Honest answers on his "wrappers" will educate a smoker about his own habit and tell him where he fits in the six basic reasons for smoking: stimulation, relaxation, crutch for problems, nicotine craving, handling and habit.

One out of four smokers is the kind who is dependent or "hooked" on nicotine.

EVEN IF you are the hooked type, you may be relieved to learn that cigarettes are not addictive in the sense that a drug such as heroin is. Addictive drugs must be taken in ever increasing doses to produce the same result.

Cigarettes are different. Smoking can lead to a psychological dependence or habituation, but not a physical addiction. Nicotine is self-limiting — if you take too much, you get nicotine poisoning. Consequently the amount you smoke doesn't increase appreciably.

Giving up heroin often produces serious withdrawal symptoms that can be dangerous to a person's life. Giving up cigarettes is not dangerous.

One frequently held theory is that it's harder for women to quit than for men. It is true that an increasing number of women are smoking today, but there is no conclusive evidence that breaking the habit is easier or more difficult for them. June Walzer observes, however, that while women as a class may have started smoking later in history, they "have picked up the worst of the habit from men."

(NEXT: Step by step)

Reasons for smoking

STIMULATION — Cigarettes help you to wake up and keep on the go.

RELAXATION AND CRUTCH — These smokers range from people who like a cigarette when they're relaxed, to those who smoke to relax even though they don't really need such an aid, and finally to the crutch smoker who grabs a cigarette to ease the tensions caused by various problems.

NICOTINE CRAVING — Smoking of this type, even though it is not a real addiction, may be hard to abandon. Nevertheless it can be done. Examine smoking habits and reasons for quitting very carefully; a strong motivation helps over the rough spots. Force yourself to do without smoking for two days and the craving should begin to abate. If you fail once, keep trying.

HANDLING — Cigarettes become an easy object of the basic urge to fiddle with our hands and mouth. Remember that many other things are better than cigarettes and easy to switch to.

HABIT — A habit smoker is one who smokes absentmindedly, finds himself lighting up when he doesn't really want the cigarette, and sometimes discovers two or three cigarettes burning in his ash tray. He also tends to smoke at the same time of day, after coffee or with a drink.

Divorce insurance? A question worth pondering

Q. Is there such a thing as divorce insurance? Your thoughts on this, please.—A.R.

A. Not to my knowledge. The topic pops up frequently and makes a great subject for heated debate. Is it possible? Who is to say? Like so many situations we face today, the impossible becomes the improbable, but before you know it, it's already happened! That's why a person who scoffs or says "dream on" may find herself eating her own words and it may well be that I am the one who will have to do it.

I have some pretty strong opinions about rushing into law everything that requires personal moral responsibility, and that goes for divorce insurance, too. Still, here are some pros and cons on the question that you might ponder.

THE PROS SAY that the person who supports the family usually provides some kind of insurance in order to protect those in the family he wishes to protect in case something happens to him. Life and disability insurance are the answer to some of the

Women and children first

problems, but not all. Divorce insurance, they say, would do away with the disparity between the financial status of the rich and the poor man in a divorce action where alimony and support are concerned. Unless the divorced party is a man of considerable means, he is often unable to maintain two households.

Countering the arguments, the cons say that problem is quickly disappearing because a woman is now able to support herself financially and after a divorce she no longer wants the "helpless female" role but wishes to feel completely unattached in every respect, including the financial support from her former husband.

WHAT ABOUT children? the pros

ask. Shouldn't they be protected?

Cons answer that if the divorce never takes place, the father has needlessly set aside for the future what might be of present benefit to the child. It's another form of saving money, but it's based on a slim contingency in the future.

Pros say it's a good idea to think and plan all this before the honeymoon sets in. But that's answered with the comment that if it happens, there simply won't be a honeymoon. It's no way to start a marriage when the whole idea of marriage is its permanence.

Dreamy sentiment! pros respond. What about a healthy man who takes out insurance? Does he actually like to think of himself as crippled, helpless or in the other world, if he thinks about it at all? His main concern is to provide for his dependents.

ON SEVERAL occasions I've heard some proposals that I'm certain a campaigning politician wouldn't include in his platform. Still, who knows? May it not happen that a government agency might set up a compulsory divorce insurance?

Suggestions have been made that it could be set up like Social Security. But the opposition questions, "Would spouses with solid, permanent ties be willing to help carry the expense that would come with divorce problems belonging to other persons?"

One of the more feasible (in my opinion) suggestions, which really isn't divorce insurance, came from a gentleman who thought it best that a voluntary trust be set up by a husband for his wife and children with the possibility of having the government provide a tax deduction and make earnings tax-exempt up to a certain point (in order to discourage a wealthy man from seeking a possible tax shelter).

UNDER THIS PLAN the money would belong to the wife automatically in the event of a divorce after a specified number of years. He figured that with annual earnings of 6 per cent, which would be automatically reinvested, a $5,000 trust fund for the wife would be worth approximately $18,000 in 20 years.

In the event of death, the money would be part of the husband's estate. Also, funds from the trust could be set aside for the children's education. If, the couple lived happily ever after, the fund could be used for their retirement.

The biggest problem with divorce insurance would probably center around an actuary. This would call for the skills of psychologists and sociologists — and the critics even throw in "bookmaker" — to figure what are the odds on a marriage's ability to make it to the home stretch.

Very interesting. Isn't it? (Readers are invited to submit questions regarding legal problems of women and children. Names and facts that would identify the writer are withheld on request. ## The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Skin ulcers formed by lack of oxygen

Is there anything that will heal an open ulcerated varicose sore on the leg? Also what causes this? Is it hereditary?

The skin breaks down and an ulcer forms because the area is not getting enough oxygen. The dilated varicose vein allows blood to stagnate in the tissues. Since the stagnant venous blood contains only a little oxygen, and swelling interferes with the movement of oxygenated blood into the area, the tissues lack oxygen. We call this "stagnant hypoxia."

The cause of the ulcer then, is the poor venous circulation caused by the dilated varicose veins. The treatment is directed toward preventing of pooling of stagnant venous blood. Such an ulcer would heal if you could stay in bed with the foot up so no blood would pool in the foot, but that is not very practical in most cases. The ulcer would recur when you got up.

Various pressure garments are often useful to help prevent pooling of blood and swelling. In many cases, surgery is necessary to remove, or at least improve, the situation with the varicose veins.

There is a familial tendency to have varicose veins. Even so, you can do things that help prevent them. That includes avoiding constricting garments particularly around the thigh, using support hose if your occupation requires long hours of standing and getting off your feet when you can.

For more information on varicose veins send 50 cents for The Health Letter number 5-8, Varicose Veins. Enclose a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Address your letter to me in care of Suburban Living, P.O. Box 326, San Antonio, Tex. 78202.

I have an inactive thyroid and have taken three grains of thyroid for a number of years. My doctor just finished giving me the thyroid scan and the test shows my thyroid is still inactive and he has increased the thyroid.

I would like to know if there is anything that would make my thyroid active again or do I have to take pills the rest of my life?

I have a weight problem so I have to diet all the time and I am terribly sluggish.

After a person has been taking thyroid in large amounts for a long time, the thyroid often remains relatively inactive. Occasionally by using hormone preparations that activate the thyroid it can be stimulated. The thyroid is normally stimulated to action by a hormone (thyrotropic hormone) from the small pituitary gland under the brain.

Some patients do better on one thyroid preparation than on another. Your doctor may decide in time, depending on your response, to try one of the synthetic hormones.

Usually it is possible to provide enough of the most suitable hormones to totally replace the function of the thyroid gland. When that is achieved, any sluggishness and weight problems caused by a low thyroid function can be controlled. Not all sluggishness and weight problems are caused by low thyroid function, though.

Broccoli salad good summer or winter

Dear Dorothy: You've got the best recipes of anybody I know. Can you help out on a new kind of vegetable mold? Any kind. — Lucy D'Antonio

How about a molded broccoli salad? Not only is it delicious, but it can be used summer or winter and takes the place of a green salad.

Mix together the following ingredients: Two packages of frozen, chopped broccoli, one can of beef bouillon, two envelopes of plain gelatin, three chopped hard-cooked eggs, the juice of one lemon, two tablespoons of Worcestershire sauce, a dash of Tabasco and one cup of mayonnaise. This makes 12 four-ounce molds.

Chill and then unmold on bibb lettuce with a blob of dressing made of a cup of sour cream and four tablespoons of horseradish.

Dear Dorothy: One day while battling with the plastic wrap in trying to cover a large turkey, I gave up and reached for a box of plastic bags — the size that fits small wastebaskets. The bird and platter slid right into the bag and the twist tie kept it securely covered in the refrigerator. This trick is now a great help when preparing for company — like preparing a salad bowl and storing it until needed. — Liz McFadden

Dear Dorothy: Here's a tip for those who occasionally have trouble downing a pill. I had to take a penicillin pill and the taste was gagging me. A close friend, who is a former nurse, solved it. She crushed the pill between two spoons and then stuffed the granules into a piece of banana. — Julia Sidney Renewing those sponges: Throw them all in with the laundry every week. If not precisely brand new, they come out clean and sterilized.

(Mrs. Riiz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Padlock Publications, Box 200, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60005.)

Engagements

Jurs-Antor

The engagement of Sue Marie Jurs to Ronald Steven Antor, son of John D. Antor, Chicago, and Mrs. Arlene Antor, Elk Grove Village, is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. LaVerne Jurs, Barrington. A June 19 wedding is planned.

A '73 graduate of Barrington High and a '74 graduate of Harper College, Sue is executive secretary at Clean Air Engineering Palatine. A '72 graduate of Elk Grove High, Ronald is majoring in fire science at Harper College and is employed as a firefighter for the Village of Hoffman Estates. He is also in paramedic training at Northwest Community Hospital.

Hjelm-Turnbaugh

Barbara Hjelm's engagement and approaching marriage to Thomas Turnbaugh, son of the Fred Turnbaughs of Moline, Ill., is announced by her parents, the Ray Hjelm of Arlington Heights. The wedding will take place in April.

Barbara is a special education teacher at Prospect High School where she graduated in '68. She then earned a degree at Illinois State University. Her fiancé graduated from Trinity College, Deerfield, earned a master's at George Williams College and is facility supervisor for Highland Park Park District.

Celebrating the Chinese New Year New DAR unit forming

You say you've broken your New Year's resolutions already?

Don't worry, there's another opportunity to start anew coming up soon. It's the Chinese New Year, which falls this year on Jan. 31 and begins Year 4674 of the ancient Chinese calendar.

The Chinese lunar calendar is divided into 12 months of either 29 or 30 days, with an extra month added every 30 months to adjust the calendar. The date for New Year's is based on various phases of the moon.

Each new year carries one of 12 animal designations — serpent, horse, monkey, rooster, or whatever. This Lunar New Year inaugurates the Year of the Dragon.

BEFORE THE Communists took over, the Lunar New Year was the most widely observed festival in China. And it is still celebrated wherever there are Chinese families.

As Emily Hahn describes the traditional observance in her book, "The Cooking of China," the New Year's ceremonies were primarily the responsibility of the men. Everybody sat up to welcome the dawn of the new year's first day. Firecrackers were set off to frighten away demons, and often the doors of the house were locked and sealed.

At 5 a.m., the master of the house unlocked the doors and removed the seals. Opening the Gate to Fortune was then celebrated with more popping of firecrackers, bowing to ancestral tablets, burning of incense and other observances.

THE CHINESE New Year is traditionally the time for a great family reunion. Children come home from near or far, and everybody pays respects to the elders and to the ancestors. There are new clothes, a great giving of gifts, and, of course, feasting. Friends call to wish the family contentment, prosperity and long life. Before the big event, everybody is supposed to pay all debts. Everybody is also supposed to settle family quarrels and disagreements, so that the New Year is greeted in a state of amiability.

Preliminaries also include a vast amount of cooking and food preparation, since nobody is supposed to use knives, cleavers, scissors or other cutting implements during the holiday.

One of the most interesting customs of the Lunar New Year is the departure and return of Tsao Wang, the kitchen god.

TSAO WANG is usually represented in the form of a colored picture and hangs in a shrine in the kitchen. But he is not so much a cooking critic as a kind of guardian of general morals.

Tsao Wang is supposed to return to heaven at the end of each year to report on the family's conduct. It's customary to smear his lips with honey, so that he will report only sweet things about the family. Others rub his lips with wine, so that he will arrive in heaven all happy and relaxed, and thus give a favorable report.

Traditionally, the kitchen god returns to the house each New Year. And the New Year's celebration always includes a sumptuous feast, not only to greet the kitchen god and welcome him back, but also for the enjoyment of family and friends.

WITH ALL THE fast-growing interest in Chinese food, the Lunar New Year makes a good occasion to treat your family and friends to an Oriental feast.

Speaking of...

by Kay Marsh

You might want to check any one of a number of excellent books for recipes, and try your hand at real Chinese cooking. Or you can use the frozen and canned Chinese specialties available in most supermarkets.

In any event, do use the date for a bit of fun and festivity in a generally dull lull of a bleak month. At the very least, pick up a box of Chinese fortune cookies for Jan. 31. And hope your fortune is a favorable one — with best wishes for a 'Happy Lunar New Year' to you and yours.

Ask Andy

Fruit fly — a sneaky little critter

Andy sends a 24-volume set of the Merit Students Encyclopedia to Glenn E. Askey, 13, of Williamsport, Pa., for his question:

WHERE DO FRUIT FLIES COME FROM?

We are told that all living things come from parents like themselves. But there are times when an ordinary person finds this scientific statement hard to swallow. For instance, we may leave a half-eaten apple on the table when there are no flies in sight, the doors and windows are screened. Yet, in a short while, our apple is infested with a swarm of fruit flies. We wonder where they came from.

There is the Oriental fruit fly, the Mexican fruit fly, the Mediterranean fruit fly — plus dozens of others, both native and imported species. All of them are genuine flies of the insect order Diptera, a name which refers to their two gauzy little wings. Their life cycle develops through four stages — which accounts for their sudden arrival from nowhere.

The average adult fruit fly is a colorful creature, less than a quarter of an inch long. The life cycle begins when the female lays her mini white eggs where the hatching larvae will find plenty of their favorite food. This is sure to be some kind of fruit, and each species has its own preference. Some attack apples; others infest cherries or oranges. Almost every type of fruit has its personal fruit fly enemy.

Unless your eyes are very sharp, you are not likely to spot a batch of fruit fly eggs nestled inside a juicy peach. The little white maggots are not easy to spot, either. Though you might happen to notice the quiet little pupae because usually they are a brownish color. In any case, these early stages of the fruit fly's life often go undetected.

The wretched critters become visible when the pupae hatch and take to the air as winged insects. This is when we wonder where in the world fruit flies come from. The fact is, they were disgorged as eggs, maggoty larvae and pupae — cunningly concealed inside their favorite fruit.

During the summer, the life cycle of a fruit fly is completed in about two weeks. This means that many generations erupt and infest our orchards. For generations, growers have used various insecticides to keep these pests under control. However, some of the chemicals may be harmful to other living things. Growers now are turning to other methods of fruit fly control. In some cases, insect-eating wasps and other fruit fly predators have been encouraged.

Perhaps the most up to date method of fruit fly control involves releasing millions more fruit flies into infested orchards. This sounds ridiculous. But these extras are sterile male flies. When they mate with the females, there will be no fruitful offspring — and the fruit fly population explosions should be brought under control.

Andy sends a 7-volume set of the Chronicles of Narnia to Mike Doeger, 10, of Hermann, Mo., for his question:

WHAT IS BEYOND PLUTO?

Little Pluto is way out there, pedaling around near the outside edge of the solar system. Its average distance from the sun is about 3,670 million miles, and all the planets are separated by many millions of miles. To us the solar system seems enormous. Actually, it's a very small item in the starry heavens. When we travel out beyond Pluto, we dip our toes into the vast ocean of outer space.

If we travel for about 26 million-million miles in the right direction, we reach the star nearest to our sun. In a different direction we must travel twice as far to reach the next nearest star. And all the stars we see are part of the huge Milky Way galaxy. It has 100 billion stars. Way out beyond our galaxy there are millions of other starry galaxies. And nobody knows where it all ends.

TV Telephone

by Ed Landwehr

I see that the video telephone experiment out east is fizzling out. Of course, the cost was tremendous, and this probably was the big obstacle. But, when you think about it, many businesses should make profitable use of it in demonstrating their products over the phone.

They used a portable TV receiver in conjunction with the phone, but better equipment could easily be designed so it would be a practical home appliance. I'm thinking that they had better have an open and shut switch on the screen as you can imagine some of the surprise home views this could unexpectedly beam out. And how about all those telephone "kooks?"

If this idea ever gets going, the local electronic phone number 255-0700 could be used very well. You would just beam us your TV picture on the phone, and we'd give you an analysis of the trouble. But meanwhile, remember Landwehr's TV & Appliance Center, 1000 W. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights does pretty good with your verbal questions now.

'Dumpling' lovers debut tonight

by JOAN HANAUER

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Can Geraldine Brooks find love and romance at 145 and even beyond? She can on "The Dumplings," the story of a pair of overweight lovers who run a New York City luncheonette.

When she and hubby James Coco pat each other on their well-padded bottoms, a customer at the counter says, "Absolutely sickening. Somebody ought to notify the Board of Health."

You have to admire a show that will take a chance with a line like that.

"The Dumplings" represents the Norman Lear office's first production for NBC and it airs today from 8:30 to 9 p.m.

THE HALF-HOUR SHOW has been billed as a departure for Lear, whose characters have a tendency to bark at each other — and sometimes bite.

Coco and Brooks between them couldn't raise a growl. They love one another, romantically, passionately, so that they celebrate such events as the anniversary of the day they almost didn't meet.

Any sarcasm must come from the customers at the luncheonette, who range from rich regulars from the midtown Manhattan office building where the restaurant is located, to drop-in trade off the street.

ONE OF NORMAN Lear's trademarks is shouting, and while the Dumplings would rather make love than war, the decibel count goes up when they get home and her neurotic sister, Stephanie, drops in.

Marcia Rodd is Stephanie, and she's a delight to watch as a beautiful woman who has been through psychiatry to find herself, zen to find peace, meditation to find her navel, but still can't find a way to say no to marriage proposals from the Dumplings' landlord, a crooked city councilman played by Fred Furth.

The Dumplings exchange occasional sharp lines, as when Geraldine Brooks calls a customer "Honey" and Coco objects.

"He called me sweetheart. What should I call him?" she asks her husband.

"Pervert would be nice," Coco replies.

Distribution aids overcall

Sometimes a weak distributional overcall really pays off.

We have given North and South exactly the same cards as they held yesterday but have changed East and West a trifle. Specifically, we have given East the king of spades and West the king of clubs.

East and West can still make four hearts because there are singletons in each of the black suits, but when South gets doubled at four spades he has a real ball.

East takes his ace of hearts, looks over dummy and lays down the ace of diamonds. Diamonds are continued.

South ruffs, enters dummy by ruffing a heart. Takes a trump finesse, picks up the last trump, takes a club

Win at bridge

by Oswald and Jim Jacoby

finesse and winds up making four spades plus an overtrick.

Just think! If South had sat back and passed he would have lost 620 points instead of gaining 790.

Of course, West didn't have to double. East and West might continue to five hearts — down one, but in any event the overcall took their game and rubber away from them.

John Fanella, computer.

There's a "device" in this room that's equipped with an immense memory bank that can receive customer complaints, sort through a maze of lines and cables, then send a crew to the trouble spot, all in a matter of minutes. That's him in the striped shirt.

His name is John Fanella and he's one of the many Edison dispatchers who are ready for action 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. Because when there's an emergency, it's the dispatcher who gets the call. He's the man who uses raw information and his powers of deduction to estimate where, along the thousands of miles of overhead lines and underground cable, the problem lies. He's the man who then sends out the emergency crews to track it down and solve it. And because electricity is so vital to the welfare of a city, he must do all this with computer-like efficiency — whether the problem is an overloaded transformer or a tornado.

John Fanella has been through storms so bad that emergency crews had to be called in from as far away as Colorado. He's worked through the night restoring electricity to a factory so people could go back to work in the morning. He's even sent out a man to rescue a pet cat stranded on a pole.

In a day when some companies rely heavily on the impersonal response of a computer, we're glad to have John and our other dispatchers. As he puts it, "I have the highest respect for this department and our people. They're the most dedicated people I've ever met. But you've got to be dedicated to be in this business."

Commonwealth Edison
Working for you.

Dow falls to 957.81

Stock market succumbs to pressures for selling

NEW YORK (UPI) — Winded from its strong new year rally, the stock market succumbed to profit-taking pressures Tuesday and closed lower in heavy trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts said some late selling was triggered by a House vote to override President Ford's veto of a $45 billion appropriations bill for the Departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare.

"He's going to have a tough time keeping a lid on spending," one observer said.

THE DOW JONES Industrial average, which had been off four points at the outset and up five in the early afternoon, fell 3.70 points to 957.81, only its fifth loss of the year. The blue-chip average, a 7.56-point winner Monday, had climbed 100 points through the first 17 sessions of the new year.

Other averages also suffered in the late selling. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index fell 0.61 to 99.07, and the average price of an NYSE common share decreased by 19 cents.

Among the 1,904 issues crossing the tape, 771 declined, 755 advanced and 378 remained unchanged.

Volume totaled 32,070,000 shares, down from the 34,470,000 traded Monday, the fifth busiest day in NYSE history. It was the 11th 30-million-

Hutton & Co. "You've got to expect some selling after a run like that."

Citicorp led the Big Board actives, up 5/8 to 30 3/4 on 517,700 shares, including a block of 110,000 shares at 30 3/4. UAL Inc. followed, off 1/4 to 26 on 410,200 shares, including a block of 350,000 shares at 26. International Telephone & Telegraph was third, up 1/4 to 27 1/2 on 313,900 shares.

Prices closed higher in active trading on the American Stock Exchange. The average price of an Amex share increased two cents. Volume totaled 3,460,000 shares, compared with 4,210,000 traded Monday.

Insurance bias hearings slated

The public is invited to participate in hearings slated by the Illinois Dept. of Insurance on a proposed rule to eliminate discrimination against women and singles in the life and health insurance business.

The hearings are slated today in Springfield at the Illinois Building,

State Fairgrounds and Feb. 3 at the State of Illinois Building, 160 N. La-Salle St., Chicago. The hearings start at 10 a.m.

The new regulation, announced by Robert Wilcox, department director, would be effective March 1.

FREE LESSONS

When you try a KARNES PIANO or ORGAN in your home BEFORE YOU BUY!

Unique RENTAL & LESSONS PLAN
Eliminates Risk!

If you have delayed buying a piano or organ for your family because you are afraid the intended beneficiaries won't "take" to the instrument, KARNES MUSIC CO., the area's oldest (over 48 years) and largest supplier of musical instruments to educational institutions has the answer.

- 1) RENT the instrument of your choice. KARNES has 100's of top brands of pianos and organs. New ones, rental returns studio used, trade-ins.
- 2) FREE ORGAN LESSONS by professionals are available to ALL MEMBERS OF YOUR FAMILY. Your piano student also gets free lessons.
- 3) If enjoyment and success dictate, you may then decide to buy WITH ALL RENTAL FEES APPLIED TO REDUCE YOUR PURCHASE PRICE.
- 4) One low monthly rental fee, WITHOUT INTEREST, WITHOUT DELIVERY CHARGES, WITHOUT LESSON CHARGES, AND WITH FREE SERVICE by factory-trained, experienced experts IS ALL YOU NEED.

For further information on this unique plan call one of the 7 experienced counselors at KARNES or come in. They will help you choose the correct instrument for you! They will also explain the ease with which your family can become a member of KARNES' vast world of delighted music makers.

Isn't this the kind of risk-free plan you've been looking for to liberate the musical potential that lies within your own family?

3-hour delays at O'Hare?

Tightening U.S. airport security may force travelers to check in three hours before flight time so every piece of luggage can be examined for explosives, a Federal Aviation Administration official in Washington said Tuesday.

John McLucas, FAA chief, said a major effort to X-ray all airline luggage is one of the many steps his agency has under consideration following the LaGuardia Airport bombing that killed 11 persons in New York last month.

At O'Hare Airport, J. P. Dunne, acting commissioner of aviation, predicted the traveling public would not tolerate routine three-hour delays.

"ANYTHING COULD BE feasible, but the public would squawk. I don't think they would stand it. If you X-ray all the luggage, you'd have to X-ray the cargo and machines to do that aren't on the market."

Dunne said there have been no serious security breaches at O'Hare to justify the X-raying of luggage.

"This is pretty silly when it takes 1½ hours to fly to New York and three hours to get out of the airport," he said.

McLucas acknowledged that long delays might drive passengers away from the airlines.

"When you start talking about checking every

Northwest mulls med center ties

by KURT BAER

Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, is considering affiliation with a major Chicago medical school to become a teaching hospital or medical research center.

The hospital's board of directors will hire a consultant to study the possibility of expanding Northwest beyond the level of a community health-care facility.

The consultant's report is expected this summer, Malcolm D. MacCoun, Northwest Community Hospital president, said. There is no commitment to make any changes in the governing philosophy of the hospital, he said.

MACCOUN SAID THERE are essentially three alternatives for Northwest Community's long-range development.

- Northwest can remain a large, community hospital, "and there is certainly no shame in that," he said.

- By joining with a Chicago medical school, Northwest could be expanded to the level of a teaching hospital used by medical students for intern and resident training.

- Sophisticated diagnostic and laboratory facilities could be developed to give the hospital the distinction of being a major suburban medical re-

City ordered to reinstate fire deputy

by JOE FRANZ

A Circuit Court judge Tuesday ordered the reinstatement of David Wolf as deputy fire chief in the Des Plaines Fire Dept., calling the dispute between the city and Wolf "petty."

Judge Edward F. Healy ruled that Wolf, a 23-year department veteran, did not resign last June as contended by city officials.

Wolf, 45, filed a lawsuit asking to be reinstated to his $22,400-a-year post after he was removed from the city payroll July 18.

BESIDES REINSTATING Wolf, Judge Healy ordered the city to give the deputy chief full back pay from the time he was removed from the city payroll. The back pay will amount to more than $11,000.

The dispute between Wolf and the city centered on the controversial "resignation letter" of June 8 from Wolf to Fire Chief Donald Corey.

The letter was written after Corey told Wolf he had been relieved of duty pending the filing of misconduct charges. Corey testified he planned to ask the city's fire and police commission to dismiss Wolf.

Wolf, an unsuccessful mayoral candidate in 1973, reportedly has had a number of disagreements with Corey, some pertaining to his job performance and others because of his nondepartment activities.

IN THE LETTER, Wolf offered to resign either as chairman of the city's Bicentennial and historic landmarks commissions or as deputy fire chief.

The city contended the letter could be construed as a resignation, but Wolf testified that it was only an offer and not intended as a letter of resignation.

Judge Healy said he believes Wolf "was a victim of circumstance" and that the letter to Corey could not be interpreted as a letter of resignation.

"In the letter he (Wolf) said he might do this or he might do that," Healy said. "He didn't know what he was going to do."

"It wasn't a letter of resignation," he said. "A resignation must be to the point and definite and that letter wasn't."

Donald Corey

COREY TESTIFIED that after receiving the letter he asked for a formal letter of resignation, but never received one from Wolf. It was at this point, he said, that he decided to accept Wolf's letter as a resignation from the department.

Healy said, however, that Corey's action was incorrect because "no letter of resignation was ever signed."

"The chief can't make up his mind for him," he said.

The judge also criticized Corey because the fire chief said he consulted with his wife before deciding to accept the letter as a resignation.

"If the chief needs his wife to tell him what to do why does the city have a corporation counsel," Healy said.

County probe Thursday

14 officials to inspect 'Greens'

by JOE FRANZ

Fourteen Cook County officials Thursday will inspect the Greens of Golf Mill apartment complex, 8884 Stevens Dr., Maine Township, for 500 alleged violations of fire, building and health codes.

James Domico, a violations supervisor for the county, said Tuesday he will be accompanied through the complex by five building inspectors, two electrical inspectors, two plumbing inspectors, a ventilation inspector, a fire inspector and two assistant state's attorneys.

"We're going to conduct a complete investigation of the buildings," he said. "If there are violations they will be processed, and if they are not corrected we will take the owners to court."

COUNTY OFFICIALS said the investigation will begin at 10 a.m., but they were not sure how long it will take.

The investigation was ordered last week by County Board Pres. George Dunne after meeting with representatives of the Greens Tenants Assn.

The tenants group, formed recently to fight for better living conditions at the apartment complex, presented Dunne with a list of 500 alleged building, fire and health code violations.

Besides the violations, residents have complained about maintenance, water quality, security and rising crime in the 127-building complex, northeast of Dempster Street and Potter Road.

OFFICIALS FROM the Littlestone Co., the firm that manages the complex, repeatedly have refused to comment on the charges.

In addition to receiving the residents' complaints, Dunne was given a letter signed by the mayors of five nearby suburban communities supporting the Greens residents.

The letter was signed by Des Plaines Mayor Herbert H. Behrel, Niles Mayor Nicholas Blase, Park Ridge Mayor Martin Butler, Glenview Mayor Edward Patten and Morton Grove Mayor Jules Bode.

Keith Marvin, president of the tenants' group, said the organization has not ruled out the possibility of a "legal rent strike," adding that officials will wait until the county completes its investigation before making a decision.

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59

A hootenanny sing-along will be held at Marshall School Thursday from 7 to 8:45 p.m. A 25-cent admission will include refreshments. The program is sponsored by the PTC at Marshall School, 711 Chelmsford Ln., Elk Grove Village.

The Einstein School PTA will hold a fun fair at the school Saturday from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. The school is at 345 W. Walnut St., Des Plaines.

High School Dist. 214

The Rolling Meadows High School jazz ensemble, directed by Len King, will appear in-concert as the guest high school ensemble Saturday at the Illinois Wesleyan University Jazz Festival. The 8 p.m. concert in Presser Hall will end the day-long festival activities with high school bands from around the state.

The Rolling Meadows ensemble has won superior ratings at the Mundelein Jazz Festival and the Oak Lawn Jazz Festival for three years and was selected as a Class AA finalist at Oak Lawn in 1974. The ensemble won first place at the Western Illinois Jazz Festival in 1974 and second place in 1975.

King is a 1957 graduate of Illinois Wesleyan where he directed the Phi Mu Alpha Jazz Band and formed his own dance band. He plays first trombone with the Northshore concert band which recently completed an European concert tour.

Tickets for the concert are $1 for students, $2 for adults and are on sale at the Illinois Wesleyan school of music office or at the door.

Saint James School

The St. James School Parents Club will serve a spaghetti dinner Sunday in the school basement, 821 Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights.

All the spaghetti you can eat will be served from 3 to 7 p.m. Cost is $10 for families, $2.50 for adults and $1.25 for children under 12.

Reunions

Preparations are under way for the 20th reunion celebration of Maine East High School's class of 1956. Classmates are asked to contact Carol Baumer-Lechner, 772 W. Woodland, Palatine, 358-4931 or Rosemary LaForte Ryan, 406 W. Sibley, Park Ridge, 825-5370.

Supt. Gogo tells Dist. 63 board

'Consider closing two schools'

East Maine Dist. 63 must "bite the bullet" and consider closing one or two elementary schools within the next three years, Supt. G. Allan Gogo said Tuesday.

Gogo said the board should begin to seriously consider closing an elementary school by the 1977-78 school year because of declining enrollment and financial problems. The board voted in the fall to keep the current nine elementary schools and two junior high schools open next year.

Gogo also suggested the board consider converting its junior high schools to middle schools. Students in grades seven and eight currently attend junior high schools. Middle schools would have students in grades six to eight.

The board Tuesday continued its discussion on options to cut costs in the district because of anticipated deficits in the education and building funds.

A DEFICIT of more than $5 million in the two funds is expected by the 1979-80 school year. Part of the deficit is resulting from declining enrollment. Dist. 63 anticipates a 19 per cent drop in enrollment by the 1979-80 school year.

"Over the past two years and indefinitely in the future we will continue to suffer declining enrollment," Gogo said. "It eventually becomes too expensive to operate a small school." He said next year the district expects four grade schools to have fewer than 400 students enrolled.

The administration's report estimated the district would save about $200,000 by closing an elementary school.

Gogo said that by converting to a middle school system the district could close two schools within the next two years because additional space would open up in the grade schools by moving sixth graders to the junior high.

IF THE DISTRICT maintains the junior high system, he said a large amount of space would be vacant in the two junior highs.

Gogo said converting to middle schools and closing elementary schools would let the district "sustain very qualitative programs for youngsters. The price of not doing that is an annual curtailment of services and program."

Board member William Allen said the board should reconsider its earlier decision to keep all schools open next year if there is enough time to make that decision. Gogo said it would take about 14 months to decide to close a school, select which school and prepare the staff and community.

Board member Penny Larson supported the board's prior decision because "it did not appear closing a school next year would be easy for us."

Board member Barbara Kipnis said the board should stand by its decision for next year but consider closing schools in the future. "There is a point where a school becomes too small to be efficiently run and offer the individualized programs we like," she said.

Old post office offered for sale to historical unit

The U.S. Postal Service has offered to sell its facility at Graceland Avenue and Ellinwood Street to the city for $194,000, for possible use by the Des Plaines Historical Society.

The postal service wants to sell the old building because a new post office is scheduled for completion this year at Oakton Street and Executive Way.

Des Plaines Mayor Herbert H. Behrel Tuesday said the city council will consider the purchase price in an executive session Feb. 5. A decision whether to buy the building or seek another location for the historical society is expected then.

THE SOCIETY NOW is located in the old Kinder House, 777 Lee St., but has been told it must vacate the property this year to make way for a new drive-in facility for the Des Plaines Federal Savings and Loan Assn.

In addition to the old post office, the city is considering purchase of a lot at 791 Graceland Ave. If the city buys the property, the historical society would move the Kinder House to that location.

Behrel expressed doubt that the city would be willing to spend $194,000 for the old post office, but said it would be up to the city council to decide.

"If the city council is seriously interested in a permanent site for the historical society, then it's got to make a decision," said Behrel. "The Graceland property seems more attractive to me."

BEHREL SAID THE $194,000 price tag is probably a starting figure because other groups have expressed an interest in buying the building.

"I imagine that's a figure they would like to negotiate upward," said Behrel.

Others interested in the facility include the Des Plaines Park District and the Northern Illinois Planning Council.

Richard Welch, historical society museum director, has said the post office would make a good location, but said the society really has no preference.

Welch said if the vacant lot is purchased, the historical society will need about $46,000 to move the Kinder House to that site. Officials are discussing a possible fund drive to meet the society's needs.

Golden, Haase to seek reelection in Dist. 26 race

Peggy Golden and William Haase, the two incumbents on the River Trails Dist. 26 Board of Education, plan to seek reelection April 10.

Mrs. Golden, 31, of 631 Maple Ct., Mount Prospect, was appointed to the board this summer to fill a vacancy created by the resignation of Board Pres. Michael Sheyker. Sheyker resigned for business and personal reasons.

Mrs. Golden ran for the Dist. 26 board last April, losing election by only two votes to Edward Pugliese. She is seeking a full three-year term.

"I feel that I've just begun some things I'd like to see done," she said Tuesday. "I'm beginning to see the seeds of long range financial planning, the platform which I ran on last year."

THE FINANCIALLY troubled district has begun investigating ways in which to avoid bankruptcy by 1977-78. A citizens' committee has been formed to study many possible solutions to the problem. Mrs. Golden and Pugliese are investigating ways in which state legislation may help bail out the district.

"I'm also on the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization board which is a new organization. It's like being on the board of a brand new school district, and I find it fascinating," Mrs. Golden said.

Haase, 38, of 1815 Camp McDonald Rd., Mount Prospect, is seeking his second three-year term. He was appointed to the board in July 1972 to fill the vacancy of Clark Robinson, and won election to his own three-year term in April 1973.

"I have had a lot of sense of accomplishment in the last three and one-half years," Haase said Tuesday. "There remains a great deal to be done. It's exciting to me, and makes me feel generally useful. I like to do things that are useful," he said.

HAASE AND Mrs. Golden plan to seek the endorsement of the Dist. 26 General Caucus. The Caucus will interview prospective candidates Feb. 4, 11 and 18.

Candidates for the Dist. 26 school board need not have caucus endorsement to run. Anyone interested in serving on the board must be at least 18 years old, a resident of the district for at least a year and a registered voter.

Candidates must submit a petition bearing the signatures of at least 50 residents to the district between Feb. 25 and March 19.

Dist. 59 issues to be discussed at meeting today

A forum to discuss issues in Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 will be held today at 7:30 p.m. at the Elk Grove Township Hall, 2480 S. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights, by the Dist. 59 School Community Council.

Topics that might be covered include declining enrollment, unit school district formation, gifted children program, teacher accountability and the school board.

Residents are encouraged to attend and ask any questions they might have about the district and its operations. Eight residents and educators involved with the district are on the panel to answer the questions.

Panel members include: Charlene Bessey, talent development program consultant; Leah Cummins Dist. 59 public and community relations director; Marge Dunlap, special education teacher at Ruple School; Lynne Helvie, board member; Alma Parrish, teachers' union president; Gerald Smiley, former board member; Joseph Stecker, resident and former finance committee member; and Jane-Renee Weakley, volunteer service bureau executive director.

Eight seek election to parish board

Eight members of St. Zachary parish in Des Plaines have submitted their names as candidates for the Parish school board.

William Sheriff, David Mueller, Dan Palatino, John O'Laughlin, Diane Di-Gullio, Linda Smith and Vince Zapparo, all of Des Plaines, and Carmen DeAngellis of Mount Prospect, are candidates for the school board.

The parish will elect three of the candidates to three-year terms.

8.6% teacher pay hike OK'd by Dist. 207

An 8.6 per cent salary increase for teachers has been approved by the High School Dist. 207 Board of Education, ending more than 10 months of negotiations.

The board Monday approved a one-year contract for teachers calling for a 6.1 per cent salary increase at all steps of the salary schedule in addition to the 2.5 per cent increase teachers receive for an additional year's experience.

A beginning teacher with a bachelor's degree and no experience will receive $10,220 compared to $9,638 last year. The top pay in the district will be $23,125 for a 20-year teacher who has at least 84 hours of graduate credit beyond a master's degree.

The total salary package will cost the district about $12 million, or about $700,000 more than last year.

Other items in the contract include increased major medical coverage from $10,000 to $100,000, increased extracurricular pay, increased summer school pay and new procedures for recording grievances.

The board also set the school calendar for the 1976-77 school year. School will begin the day after Labor Day, Sept. 7, next year and will end June 17. Winter vacation will begin Dec. 19 with students returning to school Jan. 3. Spring break will begin March 26 with students returning to school April 4. Students also will have Good Friday, April 8, off next year.

Chairman's actions cited

Three quit posts on Bicentennial unit

by LINDA PUNCH

Three members of the four-member Wheeling Bicentennial Commission have resigned, protesting actions by commission chairman Kathleen Bellwoar.

Commission members the Rev. Thomas Moran, Carolyn Jenks and Gertrude Trunda submitted their resignations Monday, saying Mrs. Bellwoar exceeded her authority as chairman. In the letter of resignation, they said "we feel we cannot serve the village in this situation."

The three said Mrs. Bellwoar had "entered into major financial obligations concerning the village on her own authority" contrary to village ordinance.

Village Trustee Otis L. Hedlund said he will meet at 8 p.m. today with Mrs. Bellwoar and commission members who resigned in an attempt to resolve the dispute.

MRS. TRUNDA said commissioners were concerned that Mrs. Bellwoar had committed the village to selling $12,000 worth of tickets to the March 11 performance of the Shriners Circus. The performance has been designated Wheeling night and the Bicentennial commission will receive a portion of the proceeds from ticket sales.

Hedlund said that while the commission had agreed to sell 4,000 tickets "only the village board can commit the village to anything."

"But they (the commission) did go ahead and take the 4,000 tickets," he said.

Mrs. Bellwoar said the commission is selling the tickets on consignment and needs to sell only 2,000 to make a profit. She said 1,000 tickets have already been sold.

"I CAN'T FORESEE any problems in selling the tickets," she said, adding that Ms. Jenks was present when the commitment was made.

The three commission members who resigned also charged Mrs. Bellwoar with proceeding "on her own authority with the planning of major events rather than working through the (village) president and board of trustees." They said Mrs. Bellwoar had established her own subcommittees in violation of the village ordinance, setting up the Bicentennial Commission.

Mrs. Bellwoar said she had "organizations coming in multitudes asking to volunteer."

"My philosophy is never to turn a volunteer away," she said.

Other charges against Mrs. Bellwoar included her failure to attend several commission meetings. Mrs. Bellwoar said she missed several meetings before she was appointed commission chairman by the village because "things were not going as I would like as far as production."

"I was distressed by the resignations. I think there has been a lack of communication," she said.

Quincy Park again raps plan to incorporate

A group of Quincy Park Quadrominium owners renewed their battle Tuesday against the proposed incorporation of Prospect Heights.

Many Quincy Park residents have voiced objections against Saturday's incorporation vote because they fear higher taxes. The complex, near Willow and Wolf roads and nearby apartment complexes make up the largest of five voting districts for Saturday's referendum.

"How are you going to run a city when you say you aren't going to levy a municipal property tax?" asked Sandra Glody, head of a group of residents opposing the vote.

ABOUT 40 residents attended the Prospect Heights Improvement Assn. meeting at Stevenson Elementary School. Some of them questioned PHIA officials about the city's estimated $538,685 in expenses and anticipated $605,505 in revenues during the first year of incorporation.

"You're presenting a proposal on what the revenues and costs will be, but who is to say that the city officials we elect won't turn around and shelve this?" Mrs. Glody asked.

Richard Wolf, PHIA president, replied, "That's why it is up to all of us as residents to watch who we elect."

Wolf assured residents the estimated income sources will not change because they are based on taxes currently paid by Prospect Heights residents to the county.

Quincy Park residents will continue to be served by the Wheeling Rural Fire Protection District and the Indian Trails Library District after incorporation, "since all autonomous taxing districts will not be affected," Wolf said.

"I QUESTION what kind of a city manager you're going to get for the $18,000-a-year salary you have budgeted here," one man said.

Wolf said the estimated starting salary for a city manager is based on a similar salary in the Rolling Meadows city budget. The Prospect Heights city manager will not have "the typical duties" since many services that are usually handled by municipalities will be under the jurisdiction of existing taxing districts, he said.

High School Dist. 214

"Law: Marriage and Divorce" will be the subject of a two-part program sponsored by High School Dist. 214's continuing education department. Sessions will be Thursday and Feb. 5. Both meetings will be from 7:30 to 10 p.m. at Wheeling High School, 900 S. Elmhurst Rd., Wheeling.

The major aspects of divorce will be covered, including grounds for divorce, alimony, property rights, child custody and support, and the no fault divorce bills pending in the Illinois legislature. The instructor, Edward I. Stein, is a specialist in matrimonial law.

Tuition for the series is $13. For information call 253-1700 between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m.

Scholarships

High School seniors in the top quarter of their graduating class can participate in National College of Education's second competitive scholarship weekend Friday and Saturday. Three full-tuition and 30 partial-tuition scholarships, all for four years, will be awarded.

Longfellow School fourth graders will celebrate the Chinese New Year as a culmination of a unit of study on the people and customs of China.

Parents are invited to a luncheon Thursday where students will serve chop suey and the traditional tea. The meal will be eaten with chopsticks. A dragon-snake has been constructed for a parade through the halls of the school that day and students will wear Chinese costumes and make-up.

The school is at 501 N. Arlington Heights Rd., Buffalo Grove.

In general...

The 1975-76 student achievement recognition program conducted at the College of Lake County will choose two students, one man and one woman, who have demonstrated noteworthy achievements toward their desired career goals and who have shown leadership qualities through participation in campus and community activities as winners of the campus competition.

The winners will receive a $100 cash award and a certification of merit. Their achievement also qualifies them to compete in the district and state competition.

Entry applications are available in the student service office, Room B201 on campus, 19351 W. Washington St., Grayslake. Applications may be submitted by student candidates themselves, members of the community or faculty and administration sponsors before Friday.

To be eligible, students must be in good academic standing and have completed nine semester hours or 12 quarter hours and be enrolled at the college at the time of final judging in April.

Continental Bank is sponsoring the program and providing $14,600 in award money.

"A Search For Inner Freedom," will be the topic of a lecture by Rollo May Thursday at 8 p.m. at Mother Guerin High School, 8001 Belmont Ave., River Grove. This is the fourth in a series of "Tomorrow Talks" sponsored by the Archdiocese of Chicago School Board and the Confraternity of Christian Doctrine. Tickets are $3 at the door.

Employment boon or traffic headache?

Officials await 'Great America'

by TIM MORAN

Gurnee's Marriott Great America Theme Park will open May 29, and Lake County officials are bracing themselves for the onslaught of an expected 2.7 million park visitors.

Some officials predict the amusement park's opening will boost employment, business and construction in Lake County, while others see only the headaches of traffic congestion and crime.

Transportation, both public and private, is one of the immediate concerns. Meetings with officials from the Greater Lake County Mass Transit District, Regional Transportation Authority and Lake County are planned to discuss transportation.

NORMAN WOLF, transportation planner with the Lake County Regional Planning Commission, noted that a transportation district study has already recommended a bus route from Waukegan to the park.

Since the park will be in operation primarily in the summer months, Wolf said, an existing bus line from Waukegan to the College of Lake County could be utilized by park employees.

The Village of Gurnee has proposed building an Amtrak station for the Chicago-Milwaukee trains, with feeder service to the theme park, according to Wolf.

The Lake County Sheriff's office also is preparing for the park's opening, according to Chief Deputy Robert Corder.

"We feel it will have a definite impact here and on other departments. Gurnee and Waukegan will have to beef up," Corder said.

SOME SOURCES estimate an additional 600,000 cars will be coming into the county each year because of the park, and that means more traffic accidents for the sheriff's department to handle.

"We don't have enough manpower at this time. We are running scared 24 hours a day just to answer the calls we get. Any time you open up anything like a shopping center or amusement park, you get more accidents," Corder said.

Crime in general will increase in the county because of the park, according to Corder. "Crowds draw crime. You have pickpockets, shams, pigeon drops. Marriott has been keeping abreast by hiring security people for the park," Corder said.

The chief deputy emphasized the sheriff's department was not negative about the amusement park. "We are all looking forward to the Marriott, and we think it will be good for the county. It will make people feel good, and it will bring in people and increase revenue in the county, which is needed."

COUNTY BOARD Member F. T. "Mike" Graham has a different view of the park. Graham, chairman of Lake County's planning, zoning and building committee, said, "I believe the theme park will have the singularly most negative impact on the region as any development in the county. It will have a disastrous effect on the area within a 10-mile radius of the park."

Graham sees traffic as the top priority problem caused by the park, but he also is concerned about the potential spread of fast-food chains, motels, service stations, car washes and other small businesses springing up to exploit the influx of people.

"Take all the problems we have with our 400,000 people and divide them by 2.7 million people and we will have a proportional increase in every area: Theft, crime, accidents, public nuisances."

Lake County Coroner Oscar Lind has a new employee in training, as a result of a study he did of the Six Flags amusement park in St. Louis.

"Within a year after that park opened, the coroner's case load increased 50 per cent," Lind said.

Lind anticipates deaths of elderly persons on hot days at the park, and an increase in auto accident deaths.

WHILE NO specific studies have been done by area chambers of commerce, business leaders expect a very positive economic impact from the park.

Eric Canada, a department manager for the Waukegan Lake County Chamber of Commerce, commented, "the number of people coming to the park just has to have a phenomenal impact. They will be shopping, buying gas, eating meals, camping, fishing and staying at motels."

Jim McCoy, executive director of the Libertyville-Mundelein Chamber of Commerce, noted traffic between the Marriott Lincolnshire Resort and the Great America Park would travel through Libertyville.

"This influx of people is bound to create a very favorable impact on retail sales, particularly in Libertyville and Mundelein. We can't put a dollar and cents sign on it; we will have to learn from experience," McCoy said.

The park is expected to generate new businesses in the area also, McCoy indicated.

"IT'S MY PERSONAL viewpoint that there has to be some place to put these people. There aren't enough motels to accommodate people if the projected numbers are correct," McCoy said.

Mark Frank of the Lake County Regional Planning Commission said a survey of motel space in the immediate area of the park showed 560 available rooms.

Frank said the regional planning commission's view on the park was "neutral to favorable," and he noted that it conformed to the county's comprehensive land use plan.

Employment of 1,500 high school and college students at the park will have an effect on the county, Frank said, but when compared to employment county wide, the impact will be insignificant.

The peak hours of operation for the park will not conflict with high commuter loads on area highways, Frank said. Visitors to the park are expected to arrive between 10 a.m. and noon, and leave the park between 9 and 10 p.m., Frank said.

Land use around the 200-acre park area is generally complementary, "and it is in one of our growth corridors," Frank said.

CD system warrants full-time chief: Wilson

A former deputy director of the Wheeling Civil Defense program has called on the village to hire a full-time director for the program.

In a letter to the village board, J. L. Wilson, deputy director from 1974 to 1975, said Wheeling's population justifies the hiring of a full-time director and a part-time secretary. He said salaries for the positions could be partially reimbursed from federal grants.

Wilson said the Civil Defense program represents "a concerted response to an unusual emergency condition... not a special unit or group of people standing by to save the day in case of a major disaster."

"THE FORCES responsible for Civil Defense operations are the normal forces of government plus nongovernmental personnel with needed skills such as doctors," he said.

Wilson said anyone appointed to the directors' position "should have a background in business management and a working knowledge" of the policies of the Civil Defense program.

"The village, through the director, will have to submit a detailed disaster plan, project papers and have plans in progress for an accredited Emergency Operations Center," he said.

The village will need up to a year to regain federal accreditation for the Civil Defense program, Wilson said, adding that "anyone expecting overnight results is only fooling themselves."

AN UPDATED and accredited Civil Defense program could result in financial gains for the village, Wilson said.

Copper wire, china taken in burglaries

Burglars broke into a construction trailer owned by Adams Lincoln Electric Co., Northbrook, and stole 70 boxes of copper wire worth $775, Wheeling police said Tuesday.

The burglars entered the trailer at Shadow Bend and Partridge Lane, by breaking a door lock. The theft occurred late Sunday or early Monday, police said.

In another incident, $234 in china-ware was stolen by burglars from the home of Lisa A. Singer, 448 Vita, police said. There was no forced entry to the residence. The burglary was discovered Monday.

"In years past, the Civil Defense program could have helped fund the building of the existing village hall..."

The CD program could have helped fund the fire department's paramedic training and vans," he said.

Wilson said a director "could more than pay for his salary and his budget over a three- to five-year period by simply enacting only two or three federal matching fund or grant programs." He said the director could also be assigned to other part-time duties within the village to justify a full-time position.

Village trustees are seeking a replacement for former Civil Defense Director Robert Buerger, who resigned in October. Four people have applied for the position, including acting director Thomas Lorenz.

The director's position is currently a part-time job, with a salary of $110 a month.

Village votes to keep Passolt until April 1

The Wheeling Village Board Monday voted to retain Village Mgr. George Passolt until a new manager is hired.

Passolt, who was fired in October, was scheduled to leave Feb. 1. Trustee William Hein said a new manager is not expected to start work until April 1.

Tim Maupin of Callaghan & Co., a Chicago consulting agency screening applicants for the position, said last week the village board will not be able to interview candidates until mid-February. He said it is "very unlikely" the board will choose Passolt's successor before March.

Passolt will be able to leave at any time during the interim period with 30 days notice. Passolt had no comment on his future plans.

Maupin will meet with the village trustees Feb. 7 to narrow the field of applicants for the manager position to about seven. The board will then interview each applicant individually. Maupin said 51 people from throughout the United States have applied for the job.

3-hour delays at O'Hare?

Tightening U.S. airport security may force travelers to check in three hours before flight time so every piece of luggage can be examined for explosives, a Federal Aviation Administration official in Washington said Tuesday.

John McLucas, FAA chief, said a major effort to X-ray all airline luggage is one of the many steps his agency has under consideration following the LaGuardia Airport bombing that killed 11 persons in New York last month.

At O'Hare Airport, J. P. Dunne, acting commissioner of aviation, predicted the traveling public would not tolerate routine three-hour delays.

"ANYTHING COULD BE feasible, but the public would squawk. I don't think they would stand it. If you X-ray all the luggage, you'd have to X-ray the cargo and machines to do that aren't on the market."

Dunne said there have been no serious security breaches at O'Hare to justify the X-raying of luggage.

"This is pretty silly when it takes 1½ hours to fly to New York and three hours to get out of the airport," he said.

McLucas acknowledged that long delays might drive passengers away from the airlines.

"When you start talking about checking every

Northwest mulls med center ties

by KURT BAER

Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, is considering affiliation with a major Chicago medical school to become a teaching hospital or medical research center.

The hospital's board of directors will hire a consultant to study the possibility of expanding Northwest beyond the level of a community health-care facility.

The consultant's report is expected this summer, Malcolm D. MacCoun, Northwest Community Hospital president, said. There is no commitment to make any changes in the governing philosophy of the hospital, he said.

MacCOUN SAID THERE are essentially three alternatives for Northwest Community's long-range development.

- Northwest can remain a large, community hospital, "and there is certainly no shame in that," he said.
- By joining with a Chicago medical school, Northwest could be expanded to the level of a teaching hospital used by medical students for intern and resident training.
- Sophisticated diagnostic and laboratory facilities could be developed to give the hospital the distinction of being a major suburban medical re-

Village to install boundary signs for Bicentennial

Eight road signs proclaiming Buffalo Grove an official Bicentennial community will be installed at locations entering the village.

The red, white, and blue "Welcome to Buffalo Grove, a Bicentennial Community" signs will be installed by the public works department "by the end of the month," said Barbara Sheldon, Bicentennial commission chairman.

Total cost of the eight signs is approximately $400 and was paid through fund-raising events, Mrs. Sheldon said.

Other Bicentennial projects approved by the commission at a recent meeting include a carnival planned for May and a large Fourth of July celebration, Mrs. Sheldon said.

THE FUND-RAISING carnival is scheduled for May 19-23 at the Plaza Verde shopping center, Arlington Heights and Dundee roads. A letter has been sent to all village merchants and organizations encouraging their participation in the event, Mrs. Sheldon said. Activities will include game booths and rides.

The commission also approved a $1,000 donation for the village Fourth of July celebration held in conjunction with the Jaycees. Special events will include a bicycle, pet, and costume parade, fireworks display, fire department water fights, and games.

The commission is also encouraging display booths with items sold by local merchants, Mrs. Sheldon said.

The commission is requesting donations of time and money. Manpower is especially needed for the May carnival, Mrs. Sheldon said.

Village may have to settle for a meatless buffalo

by LAURA SCHMALBACH

Buffalo fans, take heart: Buffalo Grove may have a namesake in time for the Fourth of July after all.

There's just one catch — the fur may be fiberglass.

The Buffalo Grove Bicentennial Commission is considering the purchase of a life-size buffalo statue for the front of the village hall. Bids for the statue are being sought, and the bogus buffalo may grace the municipal building by July 4, said Barbara Sheldon, chairman of the commission.

"The commission will take a formal vote in February," Mrs. Sheldon said. "We think we could raise the funds from a carnival planned for May and other fund-raising events."

The commission has temporarily abandoned plans for purchasing live buffalo because no space is available, Mrs. Sheldon said. The commission could seek purchasing buffalo again if a suitable piece of land becomes available, she added.

In the meantime, the commission is investigating various materials for the statue. Chicago's variable climate is a big factor, Mrs. Sheldon said.

Bronze is suitable, but "very expensive," and concrete was frowned upon because "it doesn't hold up well — the lions in front of the Art Institute are crumbling," Mrs. Sheldon said.

Planners to discuss zoning requests

Requests by two developers for single-family zoning in Buffalo Grove will be discussed at a workshop session of the plan commission tonight.

The commission will meet at 8 p.m. at the village hall, 50 Raupp Blvd. Under discussion will be a request by Levitt and Sons, Inc. for a zoning change from multiple-family to single-family in the third phase of the Strathmore Grove subdivision.

The firm wants to build 165 homes on the 61-acre site. Of the 61 acres, 3.5 acres are intended for a church site.

The plan commission will also discuss an annexation proposal of approximately 65 acres at the northeast corner of Ill. Rte. 83 and Busch Road by Surety Homes Corp., Bolingbrook.

The firm wants to develop single-family homes in the area.

Stuck in muck? Call a fire truck

by LAURA SCHMALBACH

It isn't often Buffalo Grove paramedics respond to a call from a man stuck in the muck.

It happened Tuesday morning when Chuck Matchen, a Buffalo Grove public works employee, was hard at work on a storm sewer behind Cambridge Court. Things were fine until Matchen's hip boots began to fill with water and cling to his legs.

Before he knew it, Matchen was 10 feet below ground and stuck. The paramedics responded with an engine, squad car, and heated ambulance. After firemen worked about 10 minutes with a rope, Matchen was safely on his way to a hot shower at the fire station.

A change of clothes later, Matchen was back on the job. "He was just a little wet and cold," Capt. Hanson of the fire department reported. "Nothing serious."

Next time, higher boots may be in order.

3-hour delays at O'Hare?

Tightening U.S. airport security may force travelers to check in three hours before flight time so every piece of luggage can be examined for explosives, a Federal Aviation Administration official in Washington said Tuesday.

John McLucas, FAA chief, said a major effort to X-ray all airline luggage is one of the many steps his agency has under consideration following the LaGuardia Airport bombing that killed 11 persons in New York last month.

At O'Hare Airport, J. P. Dunne, acting commissioner of aviation, predicted the traveling public would not tolerate routing three-hour delays.

"ANYTHING COULD BE feasible, but the public would squawk. I don't think they would stand it. If you X-ray all the luggage, you'd have to X-ray the cargo and machines to do that aren't on the market."

Dunne said there have been no serious security breaches at O'Hare to justify the X-raying of luggage.

"This is pretty silly when it takes 1½ hours to fly to New York and three hours to get out of the airport," he said.

McLucas acknowledged that long delays might drive passengers away from the airlines.

"When you start talking about checking every

Northwest mulls med center ties

by KURT BAER

Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, is considering affiliation with a major Chicago medical school to become a teaching hospital or medical research center.

The hospital's board of directors will hire a consultant to study the possibility of expanding Northwest beyond the level of a community health-care facility.

The consultant's report is expected this summer, Malcolm D. MacCoun, Northwest Community Hospital president, said. There is no commitment to make any changes in the governing philosophy of the hospital, he said.

MacCOUN SAID THERE are essentially three alternatives for Northwest Community's long-range development.

• Northwest can remain a large, community hospital, "and there is certainly no shame in that," he said.

• By joining with a Chicago medical school, Northwest could be expanded to the level of a teaching hospital used by medical students for intern and resident training.

• Sophisticated diagnostic and laboratory facilities could be developed to give the hospital the distinction of being a major suburban medical re-

Willis urges board to vote yes, but . . .

Village refuses to join counties in funding plan

The Elk Grove Village Board Tuesday night voted against joining either Cook or DuPage counties for eligibility for federal funding under the U.S. Housing and Community Development Act.

Village Mgr. Charles A. Willis unsuccessfully urged the board to join Cook County for the program eligibility period. He and Village Pres. Charles J. Zettek said a project such as cleaning drainage ditches in the industrial area might be accomplished through grant monies.

"Those drainage ditches are in need of remedy to aid flood control," Zettek said. "The manager and I have talked about several other projects, too."

The board unanimously rejected becoming part of the DuPage County program, and only trustees Nanci L. Vanderweel and George T. Spees favored joining Cook County. Zettek did not vote.

The village can still apply for funds — but a much smaller amount — as an individual community. Kathy Duoba, housing commission chairman, said last year $3.2 million was available to Cook County under the program and only about $800,000 was available for all communities acting as individuals in the six-county region.

The village board last year also decided not to participate in the housing and community development funding act program.

OTHER PROJECTS Willis said might be accomplished under the funding program included an access road from Higgins Road into the forest preserve (Busse Woods) recreational area, a well and reservoir west of Ill. Rte. 53, improvements to the village's sanitary system, updating of the village's comprehensive plan, work on a plan to get Lake Michigan water and development of a housing maintenance ordinance.

"Our problem is not an absence of ideas, but sharpening those ideas (for acceptance)," Willis said.

The Cook County Board approved project proposals under the grant program with the decision being based on federally designated need criteria.

Special voter signup offered Thursday

A special all-day voter registration session will be held Thursday for Elk Grove Township residents at the township hall, 2400 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

Persons 18 years of age and older who have not registered to vote may do so from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Thursday. Residents must register by Friday in order to be eligible to vote in the March 16 Illinois primary elections.

Voter registration is also being taken at the township hall during regular business hours.

HOOKED ON a Bicentennial feeling is Sally White, Elk Grove Village. Once finished, her rug will go on display at the library.

Public meet on issues set in Dist. 59

A forum to discuss issues in Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 will be held today at 7:30 p.m. at the Elk Grove Township Hall, 2400 S. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights, by the Dist. 59 School Community Council.

Topics that might be covered include declining enrollment, unit school district formation, gifted children program, teacher accountability and the school board.

Residents are encouraged to attend and ask any questions they might have about the district and its operations. Eight residents and educators involved with the district are on the panel to answer the questions.

Panel members include: Charlene Bessey, talent development program consultant; Leah Cummins Dist. 59 public and community relations director; Marge Dunlap, special education teacher at Ruple School; Lynne Helvie, board member; Alma Parrish, teachers' union president; Gerald Smiley, former board member; Joseph Stecker, resident and former finance committee member; and Jane-Renee Weakley, volunteer service bureau executive director.

Plan panel studies Centex project

The Elk Grove Village Plan Commission has begun its study of Centex Homes Corporation's plans to build 485 single-family homes in Section 22, west of Meacham Road on both sides of Nerge Road.

At a presentation Monday night before the plan commission, Centex officials said they want to begin work on the new Winston Grove section this spring and complete the work in two years. The officials also said different home models would be used for the new section.

Building Comr. Thomas F. Rettenbacher said the proposed lots are larger than those required by ordinance.

Blood drive falls short of expected 200 pints

The Elk Grove Village Community Blood Program collected 155 units of blood during its first drive, less than the total expected, said Nancy Yiannias, village health coordinator.

"We only got 155 pints Saturday and it's depressing," Mrs. Yiannias said. "Normally we get 200 pints." Many donors were turned away because of colds, she added.

The village has four blood drives each year and the program needs to collect 250 pints per drive in order to reach the 1,000 pint annual goal. The 1,000 represents 4 per cent of the population. Collection of the total ensures the blood needs of all village residents for that year.

The village does pick up blood credits when village residents give blood at area hospitals or at work and other special drives.

"Luckily we picked up 40 pints last week at the high school," Mrs. Yiannias said. Elk Grove High School held its first blood drive last Thursday and is planning another drive for May.

WITH THE HIGH school effort and Saturday's village drive, the total blood credited so far this year to the village program is 195 pints.

"Hopefully, the industrial park will pick up the slack," Mrs. Yiannias said, saying the village would probably meet its quarterly goal.

An industrial blood drive has been scheduled for Feb. 18 for employees of Dupli-Color Products Co. Inc., 1801 Nicholas Blvd. Firms such as Dupli-Color need donations from 20 per cent of their employees for them and their families to be guaranteed blood.

The next village blood drive is scheduled for April 10.

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59

A hootenanny sing-along will be held at Marshall School Thursday from 7 to 8:45 p.m. A 25-cent admission will include refreshments. The program is sponsored by the PTC at Marshall School, 711 Chelmsford Ln., Elk Grove Village.

The Einstein School PTA will hold a fun fair at the school Saturday from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. The school is at 345 W. Walnut St., Des Plaines.

High School Dist. 214

The Rolling Meadows High School jazz ensemble, directed by Len King, will appear in-concert as the guest high school ensemble Saturday at the Illinois Wesleyan University Jazz Festival. The 8 p.m. concert in Presser Hall will end the day-long festival activities with high school bands from around the state.

The Rolling Meadows ensemble has won superior ratings at the Mundelein Jazz Festival and the Oak Lawn Jazz Festival for three years and was selected as a Class AA finalist at Oak Lawn in 1974. The ensemble won first place at the Western Illinois Jazz Festival in 1974 and second place in 1975.

King is a 1957 graduate of Illinois Wesleyan where he directed the Phi Mu Alpha Jazz Band and formed his own dance band. He plays first trombone with the Northshore concert band which recently completed an European concert tour.

Tickets for the concert are $1 for students, $2 for adults and are on sale at the Illinois Wesleyan school of music office or at the door.

Saint James School

The St. James School Parents Club will serve a spaghetti dinner Sunday in the school basement, 821 Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights.

All the spaghetti you can eat will be served from 3 to 7 p.m. Cost is $10 for families, $2.50 for adults and $1.25 for children under 12.

Reunions

Preparations are under way for the 20th reunion celebration of Mable East High School's class of 1956. Classmates are asked to contact Carol Baumer Lechner, 772 W. Woodland, Palatine, 358-4931 or Rosemary LaForte Ryan, 406 W. Sibley, Park Ridge, 425-5370.

Dist. 211 wrapup

Plans to change curriculum studied

Preliminary plans for changes in next year's school curriculum have been presented to the High School Dist. 211 Board of Education.

Associate Supt. Bruce Altergott told the board last week that the curriculum committee is considering expanding several trial courses to all district schools, including horticulture, psychology II and short courses in languages. The committee also is considering adding an advanced course in photography, a trial course for advanced students in chemistry and allowing some music courses to be taken on a pass-fail basis.

Keith Shelton, assistant superintendent for special services, said some restructuring of the home economics courses was being considered because so many incoming freshmen have had home economics in junior high school. Shelton said a bachelor cooking course open to boys this year will also be open to girls in 1976-77, and an advanced accounting course may be added.

New parents club formed

A proposal to establish a "211 Club" as a branch of the five district high schools' Booster Clubs was adopted by the board. The 211 Club board will be made up of one parent or couple from each school and will be open to all district parents.

Board member Jody Albrecht, who developed the idea for the club, said some activities in which the club might get involved would be a candidates night to meet board candidates, a summer school session on adolescent behavior, and parent discussion groups.

The board also will donate $50 to the 211 Club.

Bergman honored for service

Daniel H. Bergman was honored by the board and presented with a plaque to commemorate his 26 years of service as a school board member.

Bergman, 84, served on the school board from 1951 to 1947. The board of education meeting room in the Dist. 211 administration center has been named the Daniel H. Bergman Room in his honor.

Auto program tabled

A proposal to join Harper College in offering an automotive program was referred back to committee by the board because of the high cost of the program.

The total yearly cost of the program was projected at $102,500 for about 90 students. Courses available to the high school students would be auto body repair, auto mechanics and heavy duty mechanics. The Harper Board of Trustees already has approved their part of the joint agreement.

Local Scout honored with Eagle award

Ray J. Manske

Ray J. Manske, 17, of 200 Ridgewood Rd., Elk Grove Village, received his Eagle Scout award Sunday at a court of honor held at Christus Victor Church.

Manske, a member of Troop 284, raised funds for the children's ward of Alexian Brothers Medical Center as his Eagle project.

An older brother Frank Manske, became an Eagle Scout Jan. 14, 1974.

Safety committee meets tonight

Nature land guard plan on agenda

by PAT GERLACH

Discussion of a land-control commission for Schaumburg's Spring Valley Nature Sanctuary is expected at tonight's meeting of the village safety, health, recreation and environment committee.

Trustee Alan Larson said Tuesday he was responsible for placing the proposal on the agenda for the 8 p.m.

Parks set May 15 gazebo deadline

The Elk Grove Park Board has set a May 15 deadline for completion of a "music in the park" gazebo at Disney Park, near Biesterfeld Road and Leicester Drive.

Comr. James L. Cashman said the gazebo will cost $24,000 to $27,000. It will have a steel frame, metal roofing and built-in sound system.

Park officials estimate 850 to 1,200 persons will be able to attend gazebo events. The area will be landscaped for seating on the grass.

The board gave approval for final drawings to be made up in preparation for bidding.

In other action, the board:

- Opened six bids for baseball field backstops, with a low bid of $3,099 by A.C.E. Fence Contractors, Chicago. The backstops are for Appleseed Park and the rented church properties opposite Link School and adjacent to Carson Park.

- Passed on ordinance to give 0.65 acres of unusable park land to the village. The land is adjacent to the rear of the public works garage on Landmeier Road.

Pancake breakfast Feb. 15

Michael E. Soja of Elk Grove Village Boy Scout Troop 284 will conduct a pancake breakfast Feb. 15 for an Eagle Scout service project. The breakfast will be held from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the VFW hall, 400 E. Devon Ave.

All the pancakes you can eat, plus one serving of sausage coffee for adults and orange drink for children will be offered for a donation of $1.50 for adults and 75 cents for children under 12.

Proceeds will go to the VFW's Illinois House at the group's national children's home in Eaton Rapids, Mich. Tickets may be obtained from a troop member or at the door.

meeting in the village Civic Center, 101 S. Schaumburg Ct.

The 200-acre nature preserve is being developed by Schaumburg Park District with village cooperation. It is planned on land east of Plum Grove Road and north and south of Schaumburg Road on both sides of Salt Creek.

PAUL DERDA, director of parks and recreation, said Tuesday neither he nor park board members have been contacted about the commission proposal.

Larson said he was encouraged by Trustee Ray LeBeau, safety chairman, to present the commission proposal for discussion. He said it is "only one alternative" to be considered by the committee to ensure the nature area remains perpetual open space.

"We want to make sure everyone involved in working to achieve the nature sanctuary can be assured the land will be used forever in the manner originally intended," Larson said.

The commission, he explained, could consist of "village and park representatives and others" in the community.

"It could control or place some strings on the land the village is instrumental in getting donated or purchasing for the sanctuary," Larson said.

THE VILLAGE has pledged some $50,000 in federal revenue sharing funds for Spring Valley land purchase. In 1973, the park district passed a $700,000 bond issue for land acquisition in the Spring Valley area.

Park officials have nearly completed negotiations with landowners and are seeking state and federal funds to assist in the project.

Larson said the commission is being proposed to prevent "the worst possible cases" that might occur in the future.

"Suppose 8 or 10 or even 12 years from now, an entirely new board decides the Spring Valley area is the ideal place in the community to put a soccer field.

"Or, suppose the entire park board at that time consists of members who do not live in the Village of Schaumburg. We want to prevent this land from ever being used for something other than the nature sanctuary," Larson said.

3-hour delays at O'Hare?

Tightening U.S. airport security may force travelers to check in three hours before flight time so every piece of luggage can be examined for explosives, a Federal Aviation Administration official in Washington said Tuesday.

John McLucas, FAA chief, said a major effort to X-ray all airline luggage is one of the many steps his agency has under consideration following the LaGuardia Airport bombing that killed 11 persons in New York last month.

Another review for super project

Outer Planets plan back in orbit

Lee N. Romano's proposed futuristic Outer Planets project faces another review by Schaumburg's zoning or village boards under a "new approach" adopted Tuesday night by village officials.

Village trustees voted to authorize the planning department to send projects back to either board for review when developers apply for land developments or building permits.

Village Atty. Jack Siegel called the new approach an opportunity "for village officials to take a second look at projects."

THE ACTION was taken on a recommendation of the village development committee after several months reviewing 15 projects which have not started in the time originally specified. Several smaller Romano projects, for which time has elapsed, face zoning and village board review.

"We are not wiping out zoning, but looking at things from an economic standpoint," said Village Pres. Raymond Kessell.

Romano's attorney, Donald Phares, later said he is satisfied with the board's decision.

"We plan to begin construction on the first four buildings this spring."

Zoning on the 200-acre project near Higgins Road and I-90 lapsed in December.

Romano benefited last year when village officials granted all developers a six-month extension because of slumping economic conditions. In June, he was allowed another six months when he told village officials he had entered a joint venture with Tschman and Co., New York contractors.

Zoning on Romano's original 188 acres obtained in 1968 lapsed when the developer was forced to sell about 20 acres to the state for right-of-way for I-90.

PHARES SAID the project has not yet been started: "for purely economic reasons." He said "favorable" marketing studies have been recently completed for the first phase.

"We definitely feel financing is obtainable," Phares said.

Subsequent phases are planned to include a 126-story building, space needle, an 80-story hotel and other high-rise residential and commercial buildings. A people mover, probably a monorail, also is planned.

Schaumburg Township Dist. 54

The Campanelli School PTA will meet tonight at 7:30 p.m. in the school gym, 310 S. Springinguth Rd., Schaumburg. A Bicentennial program presented by Schaumburg High School's choir will follow the business meeting.

A representative of Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 will be present to discuss the proposed school bond referendum.

High School Dist. 214

The Rolling Meadows High School jazz ensemble, directed by Len King, will appear in-concert as the guest high school ensemble Saturday at the Illinois Wesleyan University Jazz Festival. The 3 p.m. concert in Presser Hall will end the day-long festival activities with high school bands from around the state.

The Rolling Meadows ensemble has won superior ratings at both the Mundelein Jazz Festival and the Oak Lawn Jazz Festival for three years and was selected as a Class AA finalist at Oak Lawn in 1974. The ensemble won first place at the Western Illinois Jazz Festival in 1974 and second place in 1975.

King is a 1957 graduate of Illinois Wesleyan where he directed the Phi Mu Alpha Jazz Band and formed his own dance band. He plays first trombone with the Northshore concert band which recently completed a European concert tour.

Tickets for the concert are $1 for students, $2 for adults and are on sale at the Illinois Wesleyan school of music office or at the door.

The Music Boosters of Rolling Meadows High School will sponsor two jazz concerts this season.

On Wednesday, Feb. 11, Maynard Ferguson will make his fourth appearance at Rolling Meadows with his orchestra. On Monday, March 1, Dave Major and The Minors will be presented. These concerts will be held in the school gymnasium at 8 p.m.

Tickets for the Maynard Ferguson Concert will be $4 each. Group order of ten or more tickets will be sold at a discount of 10 per cent, and a complimentary ticket will be given to group directors. Tickets for Dave Major and The Minors will be $3 and the same group discount will apply. Discount orders for the Maynard Ferguson Concert must be paid by Monday, Feb. 9, and for the Dave Major concert by Friday, Feb. 27.

Mail orders will be accepted and tickets may be purchased in advance at the high school office, 2901 Central Rd., Rolling Meadows. For information call 259-9640, ext. 57, or 255-7985.

Village defers proposal for amusement tax

A proposed amusement tax, which would generate $10,000 to $15,000 a year, has been deferred indefinitely by the Hoffman Estates Finance Committee because of reluctance to introduce new taxes at this time.

"At this point, I do not believe it is the mood of this committee to create another tax," said Chairman William Cowin.

"I will second, third, and fourth that," Trustee Jeanne Pavey said. "An amusement tax would drive a great deal of business out of the village and into neighboring villages."

The tax was proposed by Cowin last year based upon a similar one in the Bolingbrook. The southwest suburb's tax generates more than $250,000 annually.

The Bolingbrook tax was introduced to obtain revenue from the Old Chicago amusement center, which is part of a shopping complex with an assessed value of $50 to $60 million.

The proposal drew heavy criticism from Mrs. Pavey last year, who voiced strong objections to taxing amusement facilities.

As proposed, the tax would have been imposed upon sporting events, arcades, carnival-type rides, theaters and other activities.

Cowin's initial position on the tax was "to look into any and every revenue resource."

The amusement tax will be pigeonholed for consideration at a later time, Cowin said. "We need not seriously consider it now."

Herald gets award from area Jaycees

The Herald has been awarded a certificate of appreciation from the Schaumburg Jaycees for local coverage of the organization.

The award was presented Tuesday by Jaycee president Frank Kozak to Daniel E. Baumann, editor and vice president of Paddock Publications, and Pat Gerlach, Schaumburg reporter.

The Schaumburg Jaycees are celebrating their 10th anniversary this year. The organization has 145 members.

Sundling delays decision

Sjostedt, Gibbs in reelection bid

Two of three incumbent board members in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 say they will run again in the April 10 school board elections.

But the 25-year board veteran president Walter Sundling said Tuesday he'll postpone his decision until the Feb. 11 board meeting amid speculation that he may not seek a ninth term.

Sundling, 62, of 2073 S. Linden Ln., Palatine, was first elected to the board in 1950. He has been president of the board for 20 years. In that time the district has grown from a nearly rural district to one now building its 21st school. He is employed by John Nuveen Co., a Chicago investment firm.

IRENE SJOSTEDT and Leland "Bud" Gibbs have thrown their hats in the ring for one- and three-year terms, respectively.

Walter Sundling

Leland Gibbs

Irene Sjostedt

Mrs. Sjostedt, 31, of 324 Suffolk Ct., Hoffman Estates, was appointed in September to fill the vacancy of Robert Bliss. Bliss resigned to take a college presidency in the East.

Gibbs, 52, of 4248 Wilson Ave., Rolling Meadows, will be seeking his fourth board term. He was first elected to the board in 1967, but lost election in 1970 to Russell Thome. Thome, however, only served three months before resigning. Gibbs was then appointed to fill out his term and won reelection in 1973.

"I've learned a great deal in the last months, and I've also learned what I don't know," Mrs. Sjostedt said Tuesday. "Quite frankly, I've learned to appreciate the district more than I did before," she added.

MRS. SJOSTEDT gave high marks to the district's "cooperative spirit" and the way officials have anticipated many programs that later became mandatory under state or federal law.

"I really think the thing I enjoy most is that the district anticipates things that will be mandated before they occur, like Title IX (outlawing sex discrimination in hiring and curriculum) and the metric system," she said. Gibbs says his strong points are his experience in the district over the past nine years.

"I believe I can provide the kind of leadership and 'boardmanship' necessary to continue Dist. 15 as one of the elementary district leaders in the state," he said.

"EVERYDAY I read in the papers that education is going to pot, but I think that's a generalization. I think it's not true in Dist. 15, where we're doing a better job as reflected our test results," Gibbs said, referring to this year's Iowa Test of Basic Skills results that showed district pupils at or above national averages in all subjects.

Roselle opposes airport expansion

by PAT GERLACH

Roselle village officials have joined two neighboring communities in opposing Schaumburg's municipal purchase and improvement of Schaumburg Airport.

A resolution opposing proposed extension of the single runway from 3,100 feet to 3,900 feet was adopted by the six trustees on the village board Monday, with only Village Pres. Joseph Devlin supporting the project.

Their action supports stands taken earlier by Hanover Park and Streamwood village officials. Hoffman Estates has taken no position on Schaumburg's airport plan.

The village officials' decision conflicted with a recommendation by the Roselle Chamber of Commerce, which asked the village board to take no stand on airport improvement until a consultant's study is completed.

IN PROPOSING the resolution, Trustee Donna Knight said the chamber's request to delay taking a position on the airport would "deny our residents their rights."

Mrs. Knight also questioned Schaumburg officials "even considering" municipal purchase of an airport, "traditionally considered not a financially sound move."

Mrs. Knight and other trustees said their votes were influenced by signatures of 350 Roselle residents who, along with 1,300 persons from neighboring communities, signed petitions opposing airport improvement.

The petitions were circulated by a community action group known as Stop Schaumburg Airport Future Expansion, with members from Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates, Hanover Park and Roselle.

Robert Kuhel, 26 W. Elm St., Roselle, questioned the "moral turpitude" of the Federal Aviation Administration in originally opposing the Schaumburg project and later "searching for a way to reverse itself." Kuhel is one of the organizers of the community action group.

SCHAUMBURG OFFICIALS are waiting for FAA approval of a second phase of the $56,000 consultant's study pending completion of an airspace study expected later this month.

The second leg of the study will consist of preparing an environmental impact statement and holding FAA-required public hearings.

Basic conclusions of the first part of the study recommended Schaumburg purchase the 120-acre field at Wright Boulevard and Irving Park Road, provided the total package is limited to $8.4 million, state and federal funds are available, and the project is determined environmentally acceptable.

Michael Pottle, 1504 Yorkshire Ln., Hanover Park, told Roselle village board members, "There is no advantage to waiting until later to oppose this because when the environmental impact statement has been prepared, our only alternative is (fighting it in) court." Pottle, an environmental law professor who has worked with SSAFE members, represented the Better Independent Government Homeowners Assn. of Hanover Park. The group began as a Hanover Park village political party several years ago, though Pottle says it has been now converted to a homeowners group.

Persons who spoke in favor of the airport proposal included Richard Gaddis, president of the Roselle chamber of commerce, William Jones, president of Schaumburg-Centex Industrial Park Businessmen's Assn., Kenneth B. Wolmer, vice-president and general manager of Schaumburg Airport, and Mel Rathbun and Robert Frantz, of Schaumburg Pilots Assn.

Panel suggests soccer field use

nounced park district procedures.

The conflict originated when the groups asked for use of the athletic fields for Sunday afternoon play this spring. Preliminary meetings between ball club representatives could not solve the problem, officials of the factions said Tuesday night.

"I think the best way to handle the situation to be fair to all is to share the fields," Park District Pres. George Rush said early in the meeting.

"We want the board to make a decision on who will get the fields on Sunday. That's why we came here," athletic association member Dick Russo said.

Park District Director Allen Binder presented three possible alternatives the groups could use to share the fields.

All three were turned down by the officials of the ball clubs in favor of a committee decision on which group could use the fields.

At one point confusion in the audience prompted Rush to say, "If you want to argue please go in the back room and have the survivor talk to us later."

Rush told the groups that Tuesday's decision was not official because it must be approved by the park board in February.

The soccer club was originally part of the athletic association but split from the organization last fall.

3-hour delays at O'Hare?

Tightening U.S. airport security may force travelers to check in three hours before flight time so every piece of luggage can be examined for explosives, a Federal Aviation Administration official in Washington said Tuesday.

John McLucas, FAA chief, said a major effort to X-ray all airline luggage is one of the many steps his agency has under consideration following the LaGuardia Airport bombing that killed 11 persons in New York last month.

At O'Hare Airport, J. P. Dunne, acting commissioner of aviation, predicted the traveling public would not tolerate routine three-hour delays.

"ANYTHING COULD BE feasible, but the public would squawk. I don't think they would stand it. If you X-ray all the luggage, you'd have to X-ray the cargo and machines to do that aren't on the market."

Dunne said there have been no serious security breaches at O'Hare to justify the X-raying of luggage. "This is pretty silly when it takes 1½ hours to fly to New York and three hours to get out of the airport," he said.

McLucas acknowledged that long delays might drive passengers away from the airlines.

"When you start talking about checking every

Northwest mulls med center ties

by KURT BAER

Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, is considering affiliation with a major Chicago medical school to become a teaching hospital or medical research center.

The hospital's board of directors will hire a consultant to study the possibility of expanding Northwest beyond the level of a community health-care facility.

The consultant's report is expected this summer, Malcolm D. MacCoun, Northwest Community Hospital president, said. There is no commitment to make any changes in the governing philosophy of the hospital, he said.

MacCOUN SAID THERE are essentially three alternatives for Northwest Community's long-range development.

- Northwest can remain a large, community hospital, "and there is certainly no shame in that," he said.

- By joining with a Chicago medical school, Northwest could be expanded to the level of a teaching hospital used by medical students for intern and resident training.

- Sophisticated diagnostic and laboratory facilities could be developed to give the hospital the distinction of being a major suburban medical research center.

Referendum decision postponed

Mayor Roland J. Meyer's threat to seek a reduction in the number of city aldermen, forced the Rolling Meadows City Council to postpone a decision on calling an April 3 referendum.

Aldermen, however, still face a threat of a cut in council membership from 10 to 5 aldermen.

Aldermen Tuesday were expected to vote on holding an April 3 referendum asking if a strong manager-council form of government should be adopted. The referendum would also ask voters if 10 aldermen shall continue to be elected from the city's five wards.

MEYER EARLIER this week threatened a petition drive to reduce the council unless the aldermen Tuesday postponed a vote on the two-question referendum or included a third question seeking a reduction in the council to five members.

The council heeded Meyer's suggestion by conducting the first reading on the ordinance and not voting on it.

Meyer, however, has not withdrawn his threat to work to gain residents support to cut the council.

Meyer has maintained that if the city adopts a strong-manager form of government only five aldermen would be needed.

HE HAS VOWED that if the aldermen will not go to the city's residents for an opinion on the referendum he will work for citizens support to reduce the council.

The aldermen did not accept Meyer's earlier suggestion that the referendum include a third question to decide if the council shall be reduced to five.

Meyer after the meeting Tuesday said he will now give aldermen several days to talk to citizens in their wards before he decides if he will begin the petition drive.

If 10 per cent of those residents who voted in the last election petition and file the request with the circuit court, Meyer's three question referendum can go to residents for a vote.

Football still in the air; coaches wanted

The Rolling Meadows Boys' Football Assn. is seeking coaches, members and fund-raising ideas.

George Vette, newly elected president, said the association is gearing for a membership drive next month.

"In order to start August practice for a September season we need to recruit coaches and find people who are willing to work for a boys' football program," Vette said.

The association is planning a February meeting for anyone interested in more information about the association.

Although the association is not sponsored by the Rolling Meadows Park District, football is played on district fields and Rudy Nelson, superintendent of recreation, works with the group. Anyone interested in more information about the boys' football program may contact Nelson at 392-4360.

In addition to Vette, other new officers who will serve throughout the 1976 season are Robert Miller, vice president; Scott Paez, treasurer; Tami Miller, secretary, and Les Ten Brink, sergeant at arms.

Feb. 28 tax vote for library OK'd by city council

The Rolling Meadows Public Library Board Tuesday won unanimous city council approval to hold a library referendum Feb. 28 to increase the maximum tax rate.

Rodney Dahlin, library board president, said, "I'm thankful that the aldermen, without exception, approved the referendum. This gives us the opportunity to explain to the voters the urgent need to raise the tax ceiling to 29 cents per $100 assessed valuation."

The library board Tuesday did not ask the council to reconsider a two-part referendum proposal defeated Jan. 13 by a 6-4 council vote.

INSTEAD, THE amended referendum proposal called for a tax increase from the present maximum tax rate from 15 cents $100 assessed valuation, to 29 cents per $100.

The library dropped the second part of its original proposal, which would have asked voters to approve a $888,000 bond sale to finance an addition to the present facility.

Librarian Judith Drescher said the council's approval is "heartening, but the referendum must still be approved by residents, and then we have to wait more than a year for the money."

"Even with approval of the referendum in February, the library will face a tough year," she said.

Dahlin said the library will not be able to count on some additional operational funds until May 1977 even if the referendum is approved Feb. 28.

Dahlin said if the library referendum is approved, "instead of drastic cuts in programs and services, we will be able to minimize cuts. Cuts, however, will have to be made."

'Bye, Bye Birdie' coming to Fremd

Fremd High School students will revive the '50s Feb. 5-7 when they present the musical "Bye, Bye Birdie."

The star of the show is Conrad Birdie, played by Chuck Napolitano, the heart throb of teen-age girls everywhere.

An elaborate farewell on nationwide TV has been planned by Birdie's manager Albert, played by Glenn Killoren, in which Kim played by Claudia Crase, is chosen to receive Birdie's last kiss.

Problems develop, however, when Kim's boyfriend turns out to be very jealous and Albert's girlfriend, Rosie, played by Lisa Zakrajsek, gets marriage in her mind.

The musical, a multimedia production featuring movies and slides for background sets, will be held in the Fremd cafetorium, 1000 S. Quentin Rd., Palatine, at 8 p.m. all three nights. Tickets are $2 for all seats.

most is that the district anticipates things that will be mandated before they occur, like Title IX (outlawing sex discrimination in hiring and curriculum) and the metric system," she said. Gibbs says his strong points are his experience in the district over the past nine years.

"I believe I can provide the kind of leadership and 'boardsmanship' necessary to continue Dist. 15 as one of the elementary district leaders in the state," he said.

"EVERYDAY I read in the papers that education is going to pot, but I think that's a generalization. I think it's not true in Dist. 15, where we're doing a better job as reflected our test results," Gibbs said, referring to this year's Iowa Test of Basic Skills results that showed district pupils at or above national averages in all subjects.

Gibbs also praised the district's "sound fiscal management."

"I don't believe in deficit spending," Gibbs said. "I don't think we should commit the next generation to our debts."

3-hour delays at O'Hare?

Tightening U.S. airport security may force travelers to check in three hours before flight time so every piece of luggage can be examined for explosives, a Federal Aviation Administration official in Washington said Tuesday.

John McLucas, FAA chief, said a major effort to X-ray all airline luggage is one of the many steps his agency has under consideration following the LaGuardia Airport bombing that killed 11 persons in New York last month.

At O'Hare Airport, J. P. Dunne, acting commissioner of aviation, predicted the traveling public would not tolerate routine three-hour delays.

"ANYTHING COULD BE feasible, but the public would squawk. I don't think they would stand it. If you X-ray all the luggage, you'd have to X-ray the cargo and machines to do that aren't on the market."

Dunne said there have been no serious security breaches at O'Hare to justify the X-raying of luggage.

"This is pretty silly when it takes 1½ hours to fly to New York and three hours to get out of the airport," he said.

McLucas acknowledged that long delays might drive passengers away from the airlines.

Northwest mulls med center ties

by KURT BAER

Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, is considering affiliation with a major Chicago medical school to become a teaching hospital or medical research center.

The hospital's board of directors will hire a consultant to study the possibility of expanding Northwest beyond the level of a community health-care facility.

The consultant's report is expected this summer, Malcolm D. MacCoun, Northwest Community Hospital president, said. There is no commitment to make any changes in the governing philosophy of the hospital, he said.

MacCOUN SAID THERE are essentially three alternatives for Northwest Community's long-range development.

- Northwest can remain a large, community hospital, "and there is certainly no shame in that," he said.

- By joining with a Chicago medical school, Northwest could be expanded to the level of a teaching hospital used by medical students for intern and resident training.

- Sophisticated diagnostic and laboratory facilities could be developed to give the hospital the distinction of being a major suburban medical re-

Parks OK new study of ice rink buy

Hockey enthusiasts won a first round victory Tuesday night in their effort to get the Palatine Park District Board to sponsor a second referendum to purchase the Arlington Ice Spectrum.

The park board voted unanimously to authorize Park Director Fred Hall to update an April 1975 feasibility study analyzing the costs of purchasing and running the ice arena. The vote was taken after representatives from the Palatine Amateur Hockey Assn. presented the board with petitions signed by 2,772 residents in support of a second referendum.

Jasper Campise, chairman of the hockey group's Spectrum Committee, said the facility, 647 Consumers Ave., Palatine, was worth more than $1 million and could be purchased by the park district for about $700,000.

HE ADMITTED the petition organizers have not discussed the matter with the owners of the Spectrum, Carl Davis and James B. Grant, but Hall was directed to contact them to determine if they are still willing to sell the facility and what the price will be.

Hall also was directed to assess the status of equipment at the facility and determine what it would cost to operate in terms of fuel and utilities.

A crowd of more than 50 persons, most of whom supported the proposal, heard Campise tell the board the Spectrum is more than a hockey facility and can be used by the park district year round for dances, concerts, flea markets and other activities as well as free skating.

"I can see a lot of good things coming from this building, and I think it can be self-supporting and even be a money maker," Campise said.

He said the facility also could be valuable by providing a skating area that is far less dangerous than nearby lakes in late fall. "If we can save one boy or girl from going through the ice, I think the rink would be worth it," he said.

HE ADDED THE facility could help promote hockey and skating in the area to a point where future Olympic skaters and professional hockey players could be developed.

Park board members, who have indicated reluctance to support the issue, said they were impressed by the effort on the part of the petitioners but stayed one step short of endorsing another referendum.

Comr Thomas Patten, who has a son in the hockey program, said the number of names collected on the petition was significant.

"This area needs a facility like the Spectrum," Patten said. "We have other special use facilities like tennis courts, baseball fields and swimming pools, and I think this facility would not go unused and would get far more use than a pool."

COMR. PAUL JENSEN endorsed updating the feasibility study as the only way for the board to judge the "cold, hard business aspects" of the issue. "I think we have no choice but to pass a resolution in order to get the information we need to make a decision," Jensen said.

New use sought for old Palatine High School

by LUISA GINETTI

Palatine Township and Palatine village officials have called for a meeting with representatives of the Palatine Park District and High School Dist. 211 to discuss possible joint use of the old Palatine High School.

In separate meetings this week, the township and the village agreed to explore using the old building when it is vacated later this year. The building, 150 E. Wood St., is being replaced by a new high school located on Rohlfing Road north of the Winston Park subdivision. The new school will open in September.

The joint meeting was suggested in response to a letter from Supt. Richard C. Kolze, who invited both the township and the village to participate in discussion on using the school on a shared-cost basis.

KOLZE SAID THE SCHOOL, which includes 88 classrooms, two gymnasiums, an auditorium, a media center and administrative offices, will not be maintained totally for educational use. The district has therefore decided to contact other governmental agencies to ask if they are interested in using part of the building.

The village and the township have been seeking more space for offices, and both have appointed committees to investigate space needs.

Howard Olsen, township superintendent, said the township's facilities committee was given a copy of the letter to consider in its report. He said the committee planned to present a report to the township board Feb. 9, but the study could be delayed to Feb. 23 if an analysis of the high school proposal is included.

"There's no way we (the township) could use the whole building, but there may be a way to divide it to serve three or four governmental units," Olsen said. "It would be a shame to demolish the building."

THE VILLAGE BOARD directed Village Mgr. Anton H. Harwig to make an analysis of the village's office needs and determine if the old high school could be of use. The board will then meet as a committee-of-the-whole to discuss the analysis.

Several trustees questioned the cost factors involved in renovating the high school for office use. Trustee Fred Zajonc said a determination of costs should be made before the village makes any commitments to the school district.

He added that the new section of the school built in 1965 may be the only area worth renovating. The school was built in the late 1920s.

One resident suggested to the board the building may be suitable as a community center and should be considered for this aspect as well as for office space.

Schaumburg Township Dist. 54

The Campanelli School PTA will meet tonight at 7:30 p.m. in the school gym, 310 S. Springinguth Rd., Schaumburg. A Bicentennial program presented by Schaumburg High School's choir will follow the business meeting.

A representative of Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 will be present to discuss the proposed school bond referendum.

High School Dist. 214

The Rolling Meadows High School jazz ensemble, directed by Len King, will appear in-concert as the guest high school ensemble Saturday at the Illinois Wesleyan University Jazz Festival. The 8 p.m. concert in Fresser Hall will end the day-long festival activities with high school bands from around the state.

The Rolling Meadows ensemble has won superior ratings at both the Mundelein Jazz Festival and the Oak Lawn Jazz Festival for three years and was selected as a Class AA finalist at Oak Lawn in 1974. The ensemble won first place at the Western Illinois Jazz Festival in 1974 and second place in 1975.

King is a 1967 graduate of Illinois Wesleyan where he directed the Phi Mu Alpha Jazz Band and formed his own dance band. He plays first trombone with the Northshore concert band which recently completed a European concert tour.

Tickets for the concert are $1 for students, $2 for adults and are on sale at the Illinois Wesleyan school of music office or at the door.

The Music Boosters of Rolling Meadows High School will sponsor two jazz concerts this season.

On Wednesday, Feb. 11, Maynard Ferguson will make his fourth appearance at Rolling Meadows with his orchestra. On Monday, March 1, Dave Major and The Minors will be presented. These concerts will be held in the school gymnasium at 8 p.m.

Tickets for the Maynard Ferguson concert will be $4 each. Group order of ten or more tickets will be sold at a discount of 10 per cent, and a complimentary ticket will be given to group directors. Tickets for Dave Major and The Minors will be $3 and the same group discount will apply. Discount orders for the Maynard Ferguson Concert must be paid by Monday, Feb. 9, and for the Dave Major concert by Friday, Feb. 27.

Mail orders will be accepted and tickets may be purchased in advance at the high school office, 2901 Central Rd., Rolling Meadows. For information call 259-9640, ext. 57, or 255-7985.

C&NW fare hikes opposed by officials

The Palatine Village Board has approved a resolution opposing proposed rate increases by the Chicago and North Western Ry.

The resolution will be presented as part of the village's formal opposition to the proposed 15 per cent interim increase and 40 per cent permanent increases when the matter is heard before the Illinois Commerce Commission.

The resolution also calls on the railroad to reopen negotiations with the Regional Transportation Authority for funds. The resolution also calls on the ICC to subpoena RTA officials to testify about possible purchase of the railroad services by the transit district.

Carryover fund approved

The board approved the establishment of a cash carryover fund, which will include funds from early tax collections and surpluses which result from year to year.

The revised budget, which includes allocation of a $40,000 surplus, also was approved. The surplus funds will be used to purchase two snow plow blades, two police cars and carpeting for the police department.

Ramada Inn plan gets extension

A one-year extension for starting and completing the proposed Ramada Inn development on Northwest Highway was approved by the board. John Bakos, developer of the site, said the extension was needed to complete financing arrangements for the project. The extension puts the completion date for the project back to December 1977.

Demolition funds to be sought

Village Mgr. Anton H. Harwig was given approval to seek funds from the county for demolition of two vacant houses. The houses are located at the southeast corner of Bothwell and Wood streets and at the northwest corner of Wood and Brockway streets.

If the funds are granted, they would be used only if the owners of the buildings refuse to tear the structures down.

Plan commissioner resigns

The board accepted the resignation of Michael P. McDonald from the plan commission. McDonald served on the commission more than one year and cited business commitments as the reason for his resignation.

Free parking to continue

The streets and traffic committee instructed Harwig to prepare an ordinance calling for the continuation of the downtown two-hour free parking.

The ordinance would provide for fines for violations of the two-hour limit. Fines also would apply to violations in metered spaces.

The board said it would consider removing meters which are now covered to allow for the two-hour parking.

Sundling delays decision

Sjostedt, Gibbs in reelection bid

Two of three incumbent board members in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 say they will run again in the April 10 school board elections.

But the 25-year board veteran president Walter Sundling said Tuesday he'll postpone his decision until the Feb. 11 board meeting amid speculation that he may not seek a ninth term.

Sundling, 62, of 2073 S. Linden Ln., Palatine, was first elected to the board in 1950. He has been president of the board for 20 years. In that time the district has grown from a nearly rural district to one now building its 21st school. He is employed by John Nuveen Co., a Chicago investment firm.

IRENE SJOSTEDT and Leland "Bud" Gibbs have thrown their hats in the ring for one- and three-year terms, respectively.

Mrs. Sjostedt, 31, of 324 Suffolk Ct., Hoffman Estates, was appointed in September to fill the vacancy of Robert Bliss. Bliss resigned to take a college presidency in the East.

Gibbs, 52, of 4249 Wilson Ave., Rolling Meadows, will be seeking his fourth board term. He was first elected to the board in 1967, but lost election in 1970 to Russell Thome. Thome, however, only served three months before resigning. Gibbs was then appointed to fill out his term and won reelection in 1973.

"I've learned a great deal in the last months, and I've also learned what I don't know," Mrs. Sjostedt said Tuesday. "Quite frankly, I've learned to appreciate the district more than I did before," she added.

MRS. SJOSTEDT gave high marks to the district's "cooperative spirit" and the way officials have anticipated many programs that later became mandatory under state or federal law.

"I really think the thing I enjoy most is that the district anticipates things that will be mandated before they occur, like Title IX (outlawing sex discrimination in hiring and curriculum) and the metric system," she said. Gibbs says his strong points are his experience in the district over the past nine years.

"I believe I can provide the kind of leadership and 'boardsmanship' necessary to continue Dist. 15 as one of the elementary district leaders in the state," he said.

"EVERYDAY I read in the papers that education is going to pot, but I think that's a generalization. I think it's not true in Dist. 15, where we're doing a better job as reflected our test results," Gibbs said, referring to this year's Iowa Test of Basic Skills results that showed district pupils at or above national averages in all subjects.

Gibbs also praised the district's "sound fiscal management."

"I don't believe in deficit spending," Gibbs said. "I don't think we should commit the next generation to our debts."

There are 2 three-year terms and 1 one-year term open in the April 10

Village, RTA to discuss bus service funding plan

Funding of a village bus service will be discussed at a meeting being planned between representatives from the Regional Transportation Authority, Palatine officials and the Palatine Citizens Council.

Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones suggested holding the meeting in response to a letter from the RTA to the Citizens Council. In the letter, RTA officials said they would be willing to provide technical assistance to the village for transportation needs. The letter also said the RTA has provided 100 per cent funding in some cases for new service routes.

The village and township have been exploring the transportation issue for several months, but no action has been taken. Ted Becker, chairman of the Citizens Council, which has been pushing for action, wrote to the RTA "to open up dialogue" between the agency and the village so the matter would not die.

"IT'S ALL IN the exploratory stages because we want to find out what can be done and what type of funding is available," Becker said Tuesday.

He said the Citizens Council has considered several possibilities for bus service, including a morning and evening commuter route to the train stations and a dial-a-bus service to shopping centers and other village locations.

Becker said the Citizens Council wants information from the RTA to determine whether a trial system can be started or the village would have to commit itself to a definite program.

"WE DON'T WANT to get involved in something and then six months later have to petition the Illinois Commerce Commission to get out of it," Becker said.

Jones said he believed the village should further investigate what the RTA has to offer in both money and technical assistance.

Several trustees said they believed the transportation question should be explored on an area-wide basis, rather than a village basis. Trustee Richard Fonte said representatives from the township and the Northwest Municipal Conference should be invited to the meeting with RTA officials to provide input.

"I DON'T THINK the village should get into the business of subsidizing a bus system," Fonte said.

Trustee James Shaw suggested the village get in touch with officials from Buffalo Grove, where the RTA has approved funding for a new bus service. Trustee Robert Guss said if the Buffalo Grove route goes to Woodfield Shopping Center and Harper College, the route probably would come through Palatine and could serve the village as well.

A meeting date will be set when RTA officials are available.

Buehler Y to host open house Sunday

The Buehler YMCA will sponsor a special open house Sunday from 1 to 5 p.m. in honor of National YMCA week.

The Illinois State Doubles Racquet Ball championships will be featured as well as an aquatic show and a gymnastics demonstration.

The open house is free and all residents are invited to attend.

$3 to $4.25 to cover deficit

Village trash fee likely, poll of trustees shows

by LYNN ASINOF

An informal poll of Mount Prospect Village Board members Tuesday indicates residents can expect a garbage collection fee ranging from $3 to $4.25.

The board endorsed the direct fee as a way to cover an anticipated $400,000 deficit in the 1976-77 budget as well as employee pay hikes, which also won informal approval Tuesday.

Garbage collection is currently financed with funds from village taxes. A separate assessment would mean village residents will pay more for the service they now receive.

IN THE INFORMAL polls, board members did not indicate the amount of the fee or the size of the employee pay hikes. Memos distributed prior to Tuesday's meeting showed board members favored garbage fees from $3 to $4.25 and pay hikes of 5 to 6 percent. Trustee Richard N. Hendricks was the only board member who failed to submit a memo.

"The consensus of the board is there will be some type of salary increases," Mayor Robert D. Teichert said following the vote. "The consensus of the board is there will be some kind of garbage charge."

Proposed budget cuts were not specifically discussed, but the board agreed to discuss the matter at the Feb. 5 meeting of the fire and police committee. Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley said he will have recommendations on the matter prepared by that time.

Hendricks and Trustee Leo Floros opposed the direct garbage fee. Hendricks said he wanted to keep the garbage costs in the tax levy, and suggested other items, such as water rates, also be put in the levy.

HENDRICKS, however, endorsed salary hikes "as long as it does not add to our so-called deficit." When another board member explained this was impossible, Hendricks said he was willing to work on the problem.

Trustee Edward B. Rhea, Jr. was the only board member to oppose salary increases, saying village employees are paid above-average salaries compared to other communities.

"If our employees were underpaid or even average-paid, I would support an increase of 5-6 percent," he said. Although he did not originally endorse a garbage fee, Rhea said he saw no alternative if other board members opted for salary increases.

Board members said they could not determine the amount of the garbage fee until negotiations with employees are completed.

Trustee Theodore J. Wattenberg said he would like the garbage fee to be a temporary measure, with the tax levy adjusted next year to include the increase. He said this will allow residents to write off the charge on their federal income tax.

Other new sources of revenue, including a real estate transfer tax and apartment licensing fee, will be discussed by the village board soon. A proposal to increase business license fees is scheduled to come before the board Tuesday.

Quincy Park residents rap incorporation vote

A group of Quincy Park Quadrangle owners renewed their battle Tuesday against the proposed incorporation of Prospect Heights.

Many Quincy Park residents have voiced objections against Saturday's incorporation vote because they fear higher taxes. The complex, near Willow and Wolf roads and nearby apartment complexes make up the largest of five voting districts for Saturday's referendum.

"How are you going to run a city when you say you aren't going to levy a municipal property tax?" asked Sandra Glody, head of a group of residents opposing the vote.

ABOUT 40 residents attended the Prospect Heights Improvement Assn. meeting at Stevenson Elementary School. Some of them questioned PHIA officials about the city's estimated $538,685 in expenses and anticipated $605,505 in revenues during the first year of incorporation.

"You're presenting a proposal on what the revenues and costs will be, but who is to say that the city officials we elect won't turn around and shelve this?" Mrs. Glody asked.

Richard Wolf, PHIA president, replied, "That's why it is up to all of us as residents to watch who we elect."

Wolf assured residents the estimated income sources will not change because they are based on taxes currently paid by Prospect Heights residents to the county.

Quincy Park residents will continue to be served by the Wheeling Rural Fire Protection District and the Indian Trails Library District after incorporation, "since all autonomous taxing districts will not be affected," Wolf said.

"I QUESTION what kind of a city manager you're going to get for the $18,000-a-year salary you have budgeted here," one man said.

Wolf said the estimated starting salary for a city manager is based on a similar salary in the Rolling Meadows city budget. The Prospect Heights city manager will not have "the typical duties" since many services that are usually handled by municipalities will be under the jurisdiction of existing taxing districts, he said.

2 Dist. 26 incumbents to run again

Peggy Golden and William Haase, the two incumbents on the River Trails Dist. 26 Board of Education, plan to seek reelection April 10.

Mrs. Golden 31, of 631 Maple Ct., Mount Prospect, was appointed to the board this summer to fill a vacancy created by the resignation of Board Pres. Michael Sheyker. Sheyker resigned for business and personal reasons.

Mrs. Golden ran for the Dist. 26 board last April, losing election by only two votes to Edward Pugliese. She is seeking a full three-year term.

"I feel that I've just begun some things I'd like to see done," she said Tuesday. "I'm beginning to see the seeds of long range financial planning, the platform which I ran on last year."

THE FINANCIALLY troubled district has begun investigating ways in which to avoid bankruptcy by 1977-78. A citizens' committee has been formed to study many possible solutions to the problem. Mrs. Golden and Pugliese are investigating ways in which state legislation may help bail out the district.

"I'm also on the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization board which is a new organization. It's like being on the board of a brand new school district, and I find it fascinating," Mrs. Golden said.

Haase, 38, of 1815 Camp McDonald Rd., Mount Prospect, is seeking his second three-year term. He was appointed to the board in July 1972 to fill the vacancy of Clark Robinson, and won election to his own three-year term in April 1973.

"I have had a lot of sense of accomplishment in the last three and one-half years," Haase said Tuesday. "There remains a great deal to be done. It's exciting to me, and makes me feel generally useful. I like to do things that are useful," he said.

HAASE AND Mrs. Golden plan to seek the endorsement of the Dist. 26 General Caucus. The Caucus will interview prospective candidates Feb. 4, 11 and 18.

Candidates for the Dist. 26 school board need not have caucus endorsement to run. Anyone interested in serving on the board must be at least 18 years old, a resident of the district for at least a year and a registered voter.

Candidates must submit a petition bearing the signatures of at least 50 residents to the district between Feb. 25 and March 19.

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59

A bootenany sing-along will be held at Marshall School Thursday from 7 to 8:45 p.m. A 25-cent admission will include refreshments. The program is sponsored by the PTC at Marshall School, 711 Chelmsford Ln., Elk Grove Village.

The Einstein School PTA will hold a fun fair at the school Saturday from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. The school is at 345 W. Walnut St., Des Plaines.

High School Dist. 214

The Rolling Meadows High School jazz ensemble, directed by Len King, will appear in-concert as the guest high school ensemble Saturday at the Illinois Wesleyan University Jazz Festival. The 8 p.m. concert in Presser Hall will end the day-long festival activities with high school bands from around the state.

The Rolling Meadows ensemble has won superior ratings at the Mundelein Jazz Festival and the Oak Lawn Jazz Festival for three years and was selected as a Class AA finalist at Oak Lawn in 1974. The ensemble won first place at the Western Illinois Jazz Festival in 1974 and second place in 1975.

King is a 1957 graduate of Illinois Wesleyan where he directed the Phi Mu Alpha Jazz Band and formed his own dance band. He plays first trombone with the Northshore concert band which recently completed an European concert tour.

Tickets for the concert are $1 for students, $2 for adults and are on sale at the Illinois Wesleyan school of music office or at the door.

Saint James School

The St. James School Parents Club will serve a spaghetti dinner Sunday in the school basement, 821 Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights.

All the spaghetti you can eat will be served from 3 to 7 p.m. Cost is $10 for families, $2.50 for adults and $1.25 for children under 12.

Reunions

Preparations are under way for the 20th reunion celebration of Maine East High School's class of 1956. Classmates are asked to contact Carol Baumer Lechner, 772 W. Woodland, Palatine, 358-4931 or Rosemary LaForte Ryan, 406 W. Sibley, Park Ridge, 825-5370.

Retiring football coach roasted

Frank Holan, 1307 Robert Dr., was "roasted" Saturday night at a surprise dinner party marking his retirement from the Mount Prospect Midget Football Assn. Fourteen spokesmen praised Holan as they "insulted" him.

The dinner, held at the Matire D' Restaurant, Elk Grove Village, was attended by 100 people involved in the football program. They were honoring Holan for his 12 years of service to the organization.

Theme of the program was "Holan is to Mount Prospect Midget Football what Wanzor is to milk and Sterling to silver." Andy Calas acted as master of ceremonies for the event. Judy Weaver coordinated the roast.

Holan has had four sons go through the football program while he served as head coach, assistant and publicity director.

Dick Weaver is replacing Holan as head coach in the organization.

THE KIDS at Fairview School are wearing red, white and blue outfits today. They're donning the patriotic colors for a Bicentennial assembly the fifth-grade social studies classes are presenting this morning. Theme of the program is "This History of Our Flag."

Following the presentation of colors and the Pledge of Allegiance, a film strip will be shown narrated by Claire Barnes' class. A play, "A Star for Old Glory," the legend of Betsy Ross, will be performed.

Ellen Cropper, librarian, is presenting the school with an American flag that is to become a permanent fixture in the multipurpose room. School superintendent, Dr. Earl Suter, will attend the assembly and present a Bicentennial flag to Principal Cy Koziel for the school.

Lisa Schulmann's class will do a choral reading, "The Red, White and Blue."

Dist. 59 public forum to discuss issues tonight

A forum to discuss issues in Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 will be held today at 7:30 p.m. at the Elk Grove Township Hall, 2400 S. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights, by the Dist. 59 School Community Council.

Topics that might be covered include declining enrollment, unit school district formation, gifted children program, teacher accountability and the school board.

Residents are encouraged to attend and ask any questions they might have about the district and its operations. Eight residents and educators involved with the district are on the panel to answer the questions.

Panel members include: Charlene Bessey, talent development program consultant; Leah Cummins Dist. 59 public and community relations director; Marge Dunlap, special education teacher at Ruyter School; Lynne Helvie, board member; Alma Parrish, teachers' union president; Gerald Smiley, former board member; Joseph Stecker, resident and former finance committee member; and Jane-Renee Weakley, volunteer service-bureau executive director.

Gunman robs grill, takes $200 cash

A gunman escaped with $200 cash early Tuesday after robbing Red's Grill, 1000 S. Elmhurst Rd., Mount Prospect police said.

An employee, Harvey Pulver, told police a man entered the restaurant about 12:45 a.m., pulled a small-caliber automatic pistol and demanded cash.

Police said the robber forced Pulver to empty a cash register and surrender two other envelopes kept under a counter.

Special voter signup offered Thursday

A special all-day voter registration session will be held Thursday for Elk Grove Township residents at the township hall, 2400 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

Persons 18 years of age and older who have not registered to vote may do so from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Thursday. Residents must register by Friday in order to be eligible to vote in the March 16 Illinois primary elections.

Voter registration is also being taken at the township hall during regular business hours.

Burglars hit gym, take $650 in goods

Burglars broke into a Chicago Health Club gymnasium, 255 Rand Rd., Mount Prospect, and stole 10 dumbbells and a storage rack valued at $650, police said Tuesday.

There were no signs of forced entry, but an employee told police of discovering a door open when reporting to work.

CURING CABIN FEVER

A "disease" afflicting the trappers in the Rockies, the Northwest and Canada was cabin fever. This malaise was caused by the inordinate amount of time spent during the winter months in the small confines of their cabins — usually without human companionship. To some degree, all of us here in Chicago are the victims of the same "disease."

CURE: invite your friends and-or neighbors to a Cabin Fever Party. Our experts will help you plan the liquid refreshments and will deliver all orders of non-sale items of $30.00 or more FREE TO YOUR CABIN!
